Bob Evans picked to fill city council vacancy

By DAVID LELAND

IT TOOK scarcely a flicker of an eyelash for Bob Evans to become the fifth Carmel City Council member, filling the chair vacated by Helen Arnold's death on Oct. 2.

In a special meeting on Friday, Oct. 10, the city council approved Evans 3-1, with Councilman James Wright dissenting. Wright's opposing view appeared to draw battle lines even before a vote was taken by the council members.

"Bob Evans obviously has a great deal of experience," Wright said. "But his views are different from my own, so I would vote 'no.'"

Wright said he declined to make a nomination at the meeting after assessing the situation with the mayor and other council members.

"I had suggested nominations to the mayor," Wright said. "But it was pretty obvious that there would not be any open-mindedness about the nomination."

Wright declined to reveal the names he had suggested to the mayor.

"I was trying to come up with names which were familiar to Carmel residents and presented a middle ground," he said. "But when I realized that there would be no consideration, I didn't contact them (the nominees)."

After Evans, 74, was approved, Wright cited the new council member's general plan report as an example of their opposing views.

Evans, general plan chairman, reported Oct. 7 to the city council that "subordinate units," also known as second kitchens should be legalized. The general plan committee also recommended relaxing certain regulations on building permits. These recommendations now go to the planning commission for review.

Evans, however, does not consider himself a foe of Wright.

South African Terrorism

Dear Editor:

The Reagan administration talks a good game against the spread of communism, but when the red chips are down, it seems to lose.

You don't need a better example than South Africa. The Reagan administration demands that the South African government legalize the African National Congress (ANC). It makes no difference that the ANC insists that the present South African government must be brought down by violence.

Nor does it seem to influence the matter for North Carolina's senator, Jesse Helms, to point out that he has a list of 18 of the ANC's 30 member executive committee who have been identified as communists by our own Central Intelligence Agency.

Not only does the administration demand that the outlawed ANC be legalized, but it also demands that convicted terrorist, Nelson Mandela, be freed from prison. Back in the early 1960s, Mandela was convicted and sentenced to life in prison for terrorist activities that he never even denied.

South Africa's president has offered Mandela a pardon if he will denounce violence as a means of gaining his political goals. Mandela steadfastly refuses.

Now, don't get the idea that Mandela was one of those placard carrying campus crazies that defiled the colleges back in the 1960s. That's not the way it was at all.

Writer Allan C. Brownfield provides a certain insight into the character of Mandela when he wrote in The Washington Inquirer, Aug. 8: "Mandela is not a 'political prisoner' but is a terrorist. When he was arrested in 1962, police found in his possession 210,000 hand grenades, 48,000 land mines, 50 tons of high explosives, and plans of 107 buildings and installations that were to be blown up. The police also found a 23-page hand written document entitled, 'How to Be a Good Communist.' "

That explains Mandela, and it pretty well explains the ANC, but how in the name of Joe McCarthy do you explain the actions of the Reagan administration?

Mediocre majority?

Dear Editor:

I must respond to the charge made by Irene Swanson in your letters page that the people of Montery are being governed by "mediocre mediocrity."

The present council majority of four were elected to office in opposition to Monterey II, some 4,000 housing units along Highway 68; a massive commercial development in Tarpy Flats and the proliferation of hotels in Monterey.

Since then the density of the Monterra portion of Monterey II has been reduced from some 3,300 units to 325 units. Can you imagine what the traffic would be like on the peninsula if 4,000 units had been built! Plans for Tarpy Flats have been cut way back and the open knoll area is preserved. An initiative has been placed on the November ballot that would require voter approval for any more hotels.

As to where the present council majority's priorities are let me mention just a few: hiking/bike trail, Window on the Bay, swim/gym, 25-unit senior citizen complex, Alvarado Street improvements, MIIS expansion, shuttle bus to the aquarium, converting Foam Street to one way, a major new park, Neighborhood Improvement Funds Program, writing a letter to Seaside asking that the height of a 15-story hotel be reduced (Councilman Dan Albert voted against this), and Ryan Ranch commercial park priority and improvements. All this is mediocrity? I think not.

Of course pressures to turn things around are always there and are surfacing now as the November council elections that Irene Swanson talks about draw near. Example: Paul Davis is running for the council. He has been the architect for over 300 condos on Monterey Beach, the 375-room Southern Pacific hotel at the foot of Wharf No. 1, a 308-room hotel at the foot of the Coast Guard Pier and a large hotel along highway 68.

Fortunately the council majority voted down these projects. Getting closer to home, Davis is the architect for a hotel, two restaurants and a convention center on the Hudson Ranch across Highway 1 from Point Lobos. The voters of Monterey would be letting the fox into the hen house if Davis were elected. Pass the word to your friends over the hill in Monterey.

Intellectual resources

Dear Editor:

Since moving to the Monterey area a year ago, I have met a number of men and women in their late twenties and thirties who are moving away. Though they love the climate, the ocean, the rich soil and the mountains, they can't find one critical ingredient: intellectual stimulation.

A former Carmel resident once described this area as for "newlyweds and nearly-deads." Is that an apt description? Sure, there are plenty of galleries and countless social activities, but there is little meat on the professional bone. Real estate, insurance, and financial services — the major growth areas in the nation's service-oriented economy — may seem exciting to some, but hardly provide a significant creative challenge to an open mind.

The main economy of the area is tourism, and many residents on the peninsula seem to think that's enough. But the current flap between the aquarium and the Cannery Roy Merchants Association illuminates an important socio-economic issue: should schlock vendors be protected from discerning consumers who prefer quality?

Let's take it further. Who benefits from tourism? Where do the dollars go? Do the profits and the payroll checks wind up in the pockets of local residents? What would happen if there were a major energy crisis and tourists couldn't get here, even from San Francisco, for six months? If jobs justify the desecration of the skyline with a 15-story, Fresno-owned hotel, what don't jobs justify?

Another major revenue generator for the area is Fort Ord. In our nuclear age, the military is more of a welfare system than a vital cog in our national security. The rolling thunder from their mortar practice can be heard in the bird sanctuary at the mouth of the Carmel River; the serenity is thus destroyed in playing with weapons that will never, ever have practical military application again.

The lifeblood of the peninsula is thinning. The artistic/creative community needs to be revived; not just the painters, but the writers and thinkers too. Environmentalist Tim Grady, for all of his 31 votes, had a couple of good ideas, including one that called for the Mission Ranch to be turned into an environmental research center.

We live in one of the most beautiful spots on the planet. Let's not exploit the beauty by hawking T-shirts and mediocre food to those who don't know better. Instead, let's mine the intellectual and spiritual resources that such an extraordinary environment provides. We don't need to build more hotels, restaurants, and dams. Rather we must protect the ecology of our little corner of this planet, Spaceship Earth, and show others the wealth to be enjoyed in living healthy, productive lives.

Shameful boondoggle

Dear Editor:

Our federal governent is running a timber business in Alaska that loses $50 million a year. They lose 98 cents on each taxpayer dollar they spend.

The United States Forest Service is destroying the last largely intact rain forest left in the world's temperate zones. It is the Tongass National Forest, comprising 16.8 million acres and contains the world's largest concentration of bald eagles and grizzly bears.

Commercial fishermen have told Congress that erosion from logging operations causes severe damage to world-famous salmon spawning beds. The area's fishing industry provides more jobs than the timber industry — and without federal subsidies which amount to $40 million a year. That's pretty expensive bureaucratic welfare.

Studies by the General Accounting Office have revealed that losses incurred by timber programs in many national forests have amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars in the last fiscal year alone. They themselves have conceded that 37 percent of their timber is being sold below cost, but the Tongass program is the only one with a money-losing operation written into law. For each job still maintained by this program, the U.S. taxpayers kick in $36,000 a year.

However, there is a ray of sunlight on the horizon. This program is presently under review and a lot of people are hoping that Congress has the fortitude to end this shameful boondoggle — duly recorded in Reader's Digest.

Public image

Dear Editor:

Jerry Hastings is insulting the intelligence of the citizens of Carmel by saying that Mr. Eastwood won the election because the actor had such a "public image" that he snowed the voters.

Because of the media, I'm sure it's next to impossible for an actor as successful as Eastwood to maintain a respected public image. However, Eastwood's reputable image was earned by his own dedication and hard work in the film industry. Anyone who can accomplish this and make money and friends at the same time is what a politician should be.

I believe that this country, as a whole, would be in a lot better shape if more self-made people like Eastwood got into politics. After all, the best president this country has had in my life time had a "public image" too . . . President Reagan.

Making concessions

Dear Editor:

Last week the citizens of California and Chevron, a major California corporation, were badly hurt by a politically motivated decision of Governor Deukmejian's four appointees on the California Coastal Commission.

Chevron had resubmitted to the commission its Platform Gail project for Consistency Review with the Coastal Zone Management Act (CZMA). Previously, it had fallen one vote shy of approval of its project and was now trying to win at least that vote by mitigating totally all air quality impacts and making further concessions to offset the impacts of the project on the fishermen.

The preponderance of testimony supported Chevron's extra measure of cooperation to bring its project into conformance with the CZMA. The vote was taken and to everyone's surprise, Chevron, by doing more, ended up with two votes less. Why? Because Deukmejian's appointees switched their votes, contending that Chevron had conceded too much to the fishermen and the local agencies seeking to protect their air quality.

Who benefits from these decision-makers preventing Chevron from voluntarily doing more to secure their permits? Certainly any oil companies who are unwilling to do as much as Chevron to satisfy local concerns. Certainly Deukmejian and others who would like to phase out the Coastal Commission's authority to review coastal issues. (With such abuse of their mission, they will likely self-destruct.) Certainly the federal government which is interested in developing oil as cheaply as possible even if it is at the expense of local communities.

The only way Chevron and coastal communities can avoid sustained, costly and serious impacts from the commission's actions is if the governor and his appointees can now figure out a way to undo what they did last week.

Hands off foreign policy

Dear Editor:

Seems that the diseases originating at U.C. Berkeley eventually spreads through the ranks of politicians. The student body president there can blabber Ghaddafi style and the students, there at considerable taxpayer expense to obtain a decent education, blabber in rhythm.

As a non-partisan, I've noted recently that Republicans have become almost as asinine as the Democrats. Congress' over-ride of President Reagan's veto of the South African sanctions bill stinks to high heaven. Seems the politicians would sell their mother at auction block in order to curry the black vote in this country. Naturally the blacks jump onto the sanctions bandwagon — anything to gain black power.

Is the Soviet conduct in Afghanistan more honorable than apartheid in South Africa? Congress doesn't have the intelligence or guts to instigate sanctions against the Soviets, who would tell them to go to Hades.

You can be sure that neither Congress or the blacks will accept responsibility for the turmoil, suffering and starvation that is bound to occur in South Africa and surrounding African nations. Of course the Soviets will step in and straighten out the African nations Afghanistan style.

I hope that South Africa retaliates by ceasing all strategic materials trade with the United States.

Let me suggest that the Congress (I don't claim them — they are working for the Soviets) keep their ill-advised cotton-picking hands off foreign policy.

Planners continue master plan EIR hearings

By DAVID LELAND

DESPITE A recommendation by the county planning staff to certify the final subsequent environmental impact report to the Carmel Valley Master Plan as "complete and adequate," planning commissioners last week decided to continue the EIR hearings.

The continued hearing is now set for 9 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, in the supervisors chambers in Salinas.

Last Thursday's hearings produced a dozen complaints on the current document, which was supposed to clarify questions on the previous EIR released in May.

Instead, those concerned with Carmel Valley and its plan expressed grave doubts whether the consultant, Gloria Root, had taken a realistic look at some aspects of the plan.

The county planning commission heard more than three hours of testimony ranging from the continuing dispute over Odello Ranch to how many vacant lots (lots of record) were actually in the Valley at present.

By continuing the final subsequent EIR hearings for a week, the commission has not strayed from Fifth District Supervisor Strasser Kauffman's desire to have a working Carmel Valley Master Plan completed by year's end.

The new tentative schedule has the planning commission finishing its hearings on the EIR at its meeting Oct. 16 and beginning hearings on the Carmel Valley Master Plan at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 29. The board of supervisors is scheduled to hold its first meeting on the subsequent EIR at 11:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Both the planning commission and the board of supervisors must hold two meetings each on both the subsequent EIR and the master plan. The final board of supervisors meeting on the master plan is tentativley scheduled for Dec. 9.

THE MEETING began with Lynne Mounday, staff planner, reading a letter from Rod Holmgren, who was not present at the hearing. His comments were directed at the Odellos, who have fought against being included in the master plan.

"...Attorneys for the Odellos made a threat to the county," wrote Holmgren, who is chairman of the coastal committee for the Sierra Club. "They said that if the property is included in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, they would withdraw their agreement to a proposed flood control project intended to protect the shopping center across the river."

The Odellos offered to let the county build a flood control project on their land at the mouth of Carmel Valley if, in return, they would be permitted to build 162 residential units.

"This suggests that the Odellos want all of the advantages of their superb location...but want to pick and choose which of the environmental consequences that location will accept," Holmgren wrote.

Represented by attorney Don Hubbard, the Odellos said they have gone out of their way to work with the county.

"Because we have stood up and said 'no more' maybe that is a threat," Hubbard said. But he cited more than 24 years of compromises the Odellos have made with the county while trying to build on the artichoke fields on the east side of Highway 1 just south of Carmel.

Moreover, Hubbard said the proposed project would actually eliminate a significant flood threat to the lower Carmel Valley by enabling the county to implement a flood control project by lowering the Odello levee, thus routing water through the Odello property.

Hubbard also cited statistics which showed a residential project using less water than than the current agricultural use.

Water for irrigation measures about 292.50 ac. ft. per year, he said. While with the proposed construction, which would reduce irrigated farmland, the water consumption would only measure 220.29 annually — a savings of 72.50 ac. ft.

Another issue raised at last week's hearings concerned lots of record, or the number of vacant lots which are existing and will be built on within the next 20 years.

The subsequent EIR stipulates that there will be a maximum build-out of 1,765 residential units. Of these, 615 are allotted to be developed on existing lots of record.

The current EIR states that there are 424 vacant lots of record with the right to develop — engineer Carl Hooper disagrees.

Hooper said he has spent 43 hours driving around the Valley and taking a survey of lots which could conceivably be developed. He said 424 is high.

"The number 290 is more realistic," he said, noting he had not completed his survey due to lack of time. "This (290) is a compromise; it's the rational thing to do."

Hooper said it was unwise to wait until 20 years is up to see which lots have been built on.

"The number should be corrected now," he said, "Specifically where new houses will be built. That's the number of vacant lots."

Hooper's concern lies in a mitigation within the subsequent EIR which states that lots of record deemed "unbuildable" in 20 years could be added to the number of new subdivision units. Hence, if there are more lots counted than are really existing, the possibility for increased subdivision in the Carmel Valley looms.

Local architect Alan Williams also aired grievances at last week's hearings regarding the Williams and Walters land in Carmel Valley, which had been slated for development of a hotel complex.

The final subsequent EIR deletes the 175-room Rancho Canada from the Carmel Valley Master Plan because of the number of rooms and its location in the Valley.

Williams said residents of Carmel Valley had spent years coming up with viable solution for the hotel project and, with the strike of a pen, the consultant had nixed them completely.

"I beg you to reconsider leaving (the policies) in the plan," Willams said. "To be cut out in mitigation...we are on the outside looking in after a seven-year process."

Another representitive from Rancho Canada, Nick Lombardo, expressed similar sentiments to the commission.

"I am suprised the consultant would change the policy," he said. "The hotel is split up to do what the community wanted. They did not want it (hotel building) helter-skelter."

Other comments heard from the public included:

- A plea from the Sierra Club to slow the hearings down. Richard Dalsemer said it would take at least a month to organize his volunteer organization to reach a decision. He complained that he received the final subsequent EIR too late to consult his club.
- A comment from a geologist expressing worries of extensive faulting and potential landslide areas not shown in EIR's map.
- A comment from Anthony Lombardo expressing the thought that the master plan must have clustering of houses in order to achieve its goal of providing middle- and low-income housing.

Water allocation decision not due till January

By NANCY HILLS

AFTER RECEIVING a request for an additional 100 ac. ft. of water from Carmel Oct. 13, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board voted to investigate its water allocation system, the water supply and bring a report back in January. It also voted, during another agenda item, to have a vote on the proposed dam in November 1987.

With Carmel entering its third month of a building moratorium because of its water allotment, Carmel City Atty. Don Freeman asked that the water board vote to give an additional 100 ac. ft. to the city's annual water allocation. Freeman suggested that the district take the 100 ac. ft. from the unallocated 2,000 ac. ft. the district holds as a drought reserve.

"Carmel is not — I repeat, not — in favor of taking any other jurisdiction's water away," Freeman said.

The 2,000 ac. ft. drought reserve is a portion of the 22,000 ac. ft. of water supply the Public Utility Commission stated was available to the peninsula. The water district in 1981 divided 20,000 ac. ft. of that supply among the district's members for their annual metered and unmetered use. It set aside the remaining 2,000 ac. ft. as a drought buffer. If a district city or Monterey County exceeds its water allocation, the water district will suspend issuance of water meter permits to that jurisdiction.

A redivision of the supply — called "water pie" — could decrease the amount of water another city can use annually by adding it to another political jurisdiction's allocation.

Metered water use statistics from June 31, 1985 to July 1, 1986 show Carmel had used 99.99 percent of its annual water allocation from the district. The city imposed an urgency building permit moratorium until the allocation could be worked out between the city and the water district, and water consumption is reduced.

The California Coastal Commission has also stopped issuing permits for Carmel, leaving many major building projects and their developers in limbo.

Additionally, the Carmel City Council voted on Oct. 6 to hire a water rights attorney to prepare a lawsuit against the district's allocation system. The council has not authorized litigation to proceed, but could do so at its November meeting.

After Freeman made his presentation, water district counsel Dave Laredo told the board that increasing the amount of water the district allocated would require an environmental impact report (EIR) because it would change the entire community's risk in a multi-year drought. The district, based on recent information, is concerned that too much water has been allocated already and the community is extremely vulnerable to a drought.

Freeman countered Laredo's argument by saying he believed that 100 ac. ft. was such a small amount that the board could vote to waive the EIR.

THE BOARD instead decided to develop a list of specific questions on the allocation process for the Technical Advisory Committee (TAC), representatives from the planning departments within the district.

The board also will continue to work on what the available water supply is on the peninsula during a drought and possible water supply projects that could be developed until a dam is built. The issues for the TAC should be voted on at the board's November meeting.

The board had requested in previous meetings that the TAC review the allocation and make suggestions to the political advisory committee (PAC), which advises the water board. The PAC consists of members of each jurisdiction's elected bodies. However, the TAC has not been able to come to a decision on what to do about the allocations, a situation that caused some concern the process was breaking down. However, boardmembers Karin Strasser Kauffman and Pat Bernardi maintained that the TAC had not been asked the right questions by the board.

The TAC had wrestled with the allocation problem for the second time on Oct. 10 and voted down the same 100 ac. ft. request by Carmel at that time. Members of the TAC decided they needed to wait until information on drought vulnerability was available from the district computer model and a meter audit was completed in late October by California American Water Co. Uncalibrated results from the computer model should be ready Nov. 5, water district general manager Bruce Buel told the TAC.

The audit of water meters by Cal-Am should be completed this week, the TAC was informed. It should update which meters are in which jurisdiction and supply more accurate figures on water consumption in each city and the county.

During an earlier district committee meeting, Larry Foy, vice president and general manager of Cal-Am, said that preliminary results showed that water use for some major meters had been designated to the wrong jurisdictions. The city of Monterey, in particular, had annexed large water-using meters since the original allocation was set.

The TAC also requested that the water board investigate additional water supply projects that could come on line before the dam is built.

The board is due to consider alternatives to the dam, which might include water supply projects that could serve as the interim supply, in workshops beginning Nov. 30.

The board wants to wait until the results of those workshops are completed before making a decision on additional water supplies. It also opted to wait until the computer model is calibrated — probably by January — before making any decisions concerning allocating from the drought reserve. In the meantime, the board decided that the TAC, PAC and district demand management committee will continue to work on how to deal with the allocation system and how to incorporate new information on water use into the allocation division.

DIRECTOR NICK Lombardo suggested during the meeting, reading from a prepared statement, that the board consider in committee "a new process which deletes the jurisdiction boundaries of water distribution.

"The remaining water (now currently not being used) belongs to all the people of the district and this total amount would be in one pool, distributed by Cal-Am to the people as needed."

The district total water consumption, metered and unmetered use, last year was more than 17,937 ac. ft. The remaining 2,000 ac. ft. of the total 20,000 ac. ft., Lombardo suggested, could be distributed in a meter-by-meter demand basis rather than restricting one city while others can continue issuing building permits.

"First come, first served, isn't that what you're suggesting?" asked director Billy DeBerry.

"Yes," Lombardo answered.

However, other board members expressed concern that such a plan would create a "rush to the pump" as residents and developers tried to insure getting a water meter before the 20,000 ac. ft. limit was reached.

AFTER DECIDING to refer the allocation matters to TAC, the board discussed and approved a vote in November 1987 on the proposed 29,000 ac. ft. San Clemente Dam.

Though Buel and Laredo both told the board members that it was not possible to have the states water rights hearing finished before then and probably the engineering report on the dam finished, they voted unanimously to have at least "an advisory vote" from the public.

The engineering report, which describes the technical construction of the dam, sets the price tag. Current estimates on the dam cost set it at $46 million — much of which will be paid through a public bond.

Dick Heuer, water board chairman, explained after the meeting that if the project does not have any substantial changes after the states water rights hearing, the advisory vote could stand as the permanent vote. However, if there are major project changes the vote will have to be retaken.

The board decided to approve the 1987 public vote after hearing that the states water rights might not be completed until 1989.

"I was first opposed to the early vote, but now that I've heard the discussion, I feel we have to do something, and do it fast," DeBerry said.

Strasser Kauffman and Heuer both stated that if the public turns down the dam in the 1987 election, the district could start concentrating on other water supply projects.

"I see absolutely no downside to an early vote," Heuer said.

Evans brings vast experience to council seat

"He has the best interest of the city at heart and so do I," he said.

But it would appear views regarding the business community of Carmel would coincide more with the majority (Mayor Clint Eastwood and Councilmembers Bob Fischer and Elinor Laiolo) of the city council than Wright.

"I view the business community as more of a balance than some," Evans said. "It gives us a choice. It should not take us over, but we should not come down so hard as to blight it."

Evans will fill out Arnold's term, which ends in April of 1988.

The council will appoint members to fill Arnold's committee obligations: Monterey Peninsula Refuse and Garbage Disposal District and Monterey-Salinas Transit, said Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk.

The mayor is also expected to appoint a mayor pro tem, a position occupied by Arnold, at the Nov. 4 gathering of the city council.

In an interview after the meeting, Eastwood praised the newest councilmember.

"He is as qualified as any citizen," he said. "He's a logical, calm thinker."

Eastwood also said any member of the general plan committee would have made a good councilmember. The general plan committee consists of Evans, Jean Grace, Alan Williams, Ed Hicks and Olof Dahlstrand.

FOR EVANS, the road to the city council seems like a logical one — having spent the better part of his life on decision-making bodies.

Born on Chirstmas Day in 1911, Evans grew up in New York and graduated with honors from Columbia College in 1930 with a degree in economics.

After serving as an investment counselor for a number of years, Evans served on the War Production Board in World War II, establishing user priorities for wood pulp which had been a scarcity since the outbreak of the war.

After the war Evans career took him to Monroe, La., where he became vice president of Olin Corp., a firm dealing with wood and paper supplies.

"I had more employees under me than Carmel has population," he said.

It was during this time that Evans and his wife, Marguerite, began visiting Carmel during the summer months.

It was also during this period that Evans acted as an unpaid consultant to supervise several capital expenditure projects in Monroe.

He spent three years supervising construction of a jail, city hall and airport.

When Evans moved here permanently in 1966, the mayor of Monroe sent a letter to then-mayor of Carmel, Steve Grant. The letter, Evans said, basically stated: "Here's a sucker that will do something for nothing."

The first thing Evans was asked to do was serve on the arts commission, which later became the cultural commission. He served for five years on that body.

Between that time and now, Evans has served on the planning commission, library board, forestry commission, director of the Carmel Citizens Committee and, for the past six months the general plan committee.

Serving on the general plan committee exemplifies Evan's desire for perfection.

"I like things that work," he said. "I don't like empty shells and things that don't work." Evans said he felt the general plan had fallen into the "doesn't work" category.

But Evans does not take his numerous accomplishments too seriously. "It's a matter of having a sense of humor about yourself," he said. "But not to consider the job you're doing as funny."

Carmel Red Cross conducts classes in CPR techniques

IN 1986 650,000 people in the United States will die from heart attacks ... fully three quarters of those attacks will happen at home.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation, commonly called CPR, saves approximately 250 lives every day in the United States.

With that in mind the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross has launched a campaign to train as many people as possible in CPR techniques.

These classes will teach new standards for opening and maintaining someone's airway, how to breathe for them, perform chest compressions and to do full CPR on adults, children and even infants, said Phil Gray, chapter publicity chairman.

The classes, including demonstrations and lectures, require about four hours to complete. Trained Red Cross CPR instructors will conduct the courses and students practice their skills on mannequins under professional tutelage, he said.

Those completing the CPR course will be awarded Red Cross certificates. Class size, however, is limited. For more information, or to register, call 624-6921.

First ever for city

Carmel picks a full-time recreation director

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL'S FIRST full-time recreation director knows more about play than most folks twice her age. In fact, Beth Kastrup, 28, brings to town a background in recreation which spans across two continents.

Kastrup marks the initial melding of the city and the Carmel Youth Center, which came under the city's wing recently. The bond will be complete this November when Mayor Clint Eastwood appoints the recreation commission — applications are available for that volunteer position at Carmel City Hall.

"I'm excited about coming to Carmel and becoming a part of the community," said Kastrup, who triumphed over 89 other applicants from around the country to land the job. "It's a nice honor to have."

While Carmel has never had a full-time recreation director, the youth center itself has been without definitive leadership since the retirement of Jack Giles several years ago. In the interim the position has been filled by Gile's assistant, Phil Cherry and Carol Colter, who left the youth center for business reasons last May.

But with the election of Eastwood, who has taken special interest in Carmel youth, the direction of the youth center has taken a positive turn. The city is providing partial funding and now activities abound for Carmel youths.

Kastrup plans to keep that direction when she begins her duties in mid-November. "My primary focus will be the youth center," she said. Kastrup's office will be located at the youth center at Torres Street and Fourth Avenue.

Kastrup will also be responsible for developing an on-going city recreation program which addresses the needs of the community. This includes programs for senior citizens.

Kastrup is not shying away from the challenge of beginning programs.

"I think it's an opportunity," she said. "I like the idea of start-up programs."

According to Doug Schmitz, city administrator, who actually hired the recreation director, Kastrup's interpersonal skills with all age groups was one of the deciding factors in getting the position.

The future, however, is not as clear for Jeff Bell, who has been serving as acting youth center director since July of this year. Bell said he will remain as long as he is needed.

"I will continue to work with the recreation director to give her a solid foundation in the community," he said.

Bell said he will not push Kastrup into following his policies and utilizing his services.

"She has to have her own ballgame," he said. "That's only good business to let her organize her own team."

For the next month Kastrup said she will be house hunting in the area and finishing up her job in San Anselmo, north of San Francisco. Kastrup, an avid kayaker, has been serving as a business manager and guide for Seatrek Ocean Kayaking.

She said she plans to pursue the activity in this area and also may try surfing with her kayak.

In addition to her full-time job, Kastrup has been attending San Francisco State pursuing a master's degree in business.

She will continue her studies while living in Carmel on an independent study program she has arranged with the school.

KASTRUP HAILS from North Falls, Ill. She remained in that state until beginning her college studies at University of Wisconsin.

From Wisconsin, Kastrup ventured west to Arizona where, in 1981, she began a stint as recreation coordinator for the department of parks in Chandler. She also completed her undergraduate work at Arizona State, and now holds a degree in recreation administration.

THE CITY'S first full-time recreation director, Beth Kastrup, brings to Carmel experience from two continents. The 28-year-old Kastrup is looking forward to the opportunity of bringing her style of recreation to the city.

Also in 1981, Kastrup traveled to Australia to serve as a consultant in researching, designing and authoring an educational kit for use in the schools and recreation centers throughout the land Down Under.

Melbourne, where Kastrup stayed, served as an educational experience in itself. "I got to see a lot of the world just in Melbourne," Kastrup said.

In 1985, Kastrup moved to Napa where she became the recreation supervisor for the department of parks and recreation.

She moved to the Bay Area last July.

Kastrup has also served as the chairman of the Cultural Arts Committee for District I of the state Park and Recreation Society. She was also editor of the society's monthly newsletter.

Currently Kastrup is involved in a leadership training class for young people in Marin County.

City plans bang-up 70th birthday party Oct. 31

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE THE highlight of the city of Carmel's 70th birthday will most certainly be the annual Halloween parade, the preceding five days will also abound with enough activities to delight everyone.

A few of the local schools will have parades of their own — including the annual celebration in Carmel Valley Village.

The city will block off parts of downtown Carmel for the 3:30 p.m. parade route, which begins at Sunset Center on San Carlos Street and works its way west to Ocean Avenue and down to Carmel City Hall on Monte Verde Street.

When the parade gets to city hall, the children will continue down to Carmel Beach where they will have a Halloween party. The rest of the parade will snake its way south on Monte Verde Street, east on Eighth Avenue and then south again on San Carlos to Sunset Center.

In Carpenter Hall residents will socialize and and be served refreshments donated by the Carmel Business Association.

The kickoff for the week-long celebration begins with the Long Timers' breakfast from 10 a.m. to noon on Sunday, Oct. 26, at Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mountain View. Tom Brown, a Carmel resident since 1940, will host the pancake breakfast.

Then, from 4 to 6 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 27, at Carpenter Hall the Long Timers will hold a panel about reminiscences of the past. The 1920s and '30s will be remembered by Virginia Stanton; the art community in that same era by Sam Colburn; Western Union and tales about Aimee Semple MacPherson by F. Robert Smith and stories of growing up in Carmel by Dr. James Hopper. The program is presented by the Carmel Heritage.

From 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 28, city hall will be open for inspection. Members of various Carmel commissions will act as docents.

Wednesday, Oct. 29, will mark two events to honor Carmel's 70th birthday party. From 1:15 to 1:45 p.m. the Carmel Middle School Band will serenade listeners in Devendorf Park. Then, from 4 to 5 p.m. at Sunset Center, there will be oldtime movies shown, with features by Charlie Chaplin, W.C. Fields and the Marx Brothers.

At 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 30, at Carpenter Hall, James Kinney, as Father Junipero Serra, will present a one-man historical presentation about the founding of the early California Missions.

This presentation will be followed immediately by El Mariachi Mixtlan, a popular mariachi group based on the peninsula. The group has also performed in Mexico City and Guadalajara.

ON THURSDAY night the popular mariachi group El Mariachi Mixtlan will perform at Carpenter Hall from 8:30 p.m. The peninsula-based group has also traveled to Mexico City and Guadalajara to perform.

How sweet it is! Ice cream cones get approval

By NANCY HILLS

IT'S ICE cream with an uptown flair.

The Carmel Planning Commission Oct. 8 unanimously approved a gelato (gourmet Italian ice cream) parlor with both takeout and on-site consumption, in Chocolate Dreams, a confectionery shop on the south side of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets.

The approval paves the way for the first ice cream parlor-style business in Carmel since Swensen's closed last year and could mean the end of Carmel's so-called Great Ice Cream Controversy that brought national attention to the village last year.

The unanimous vote brought applause from the audience and Commission Chairman Ken White waved Chocolate Dreams owner Michael Lajigian out the door with a warning to "have raspberry" in stock.

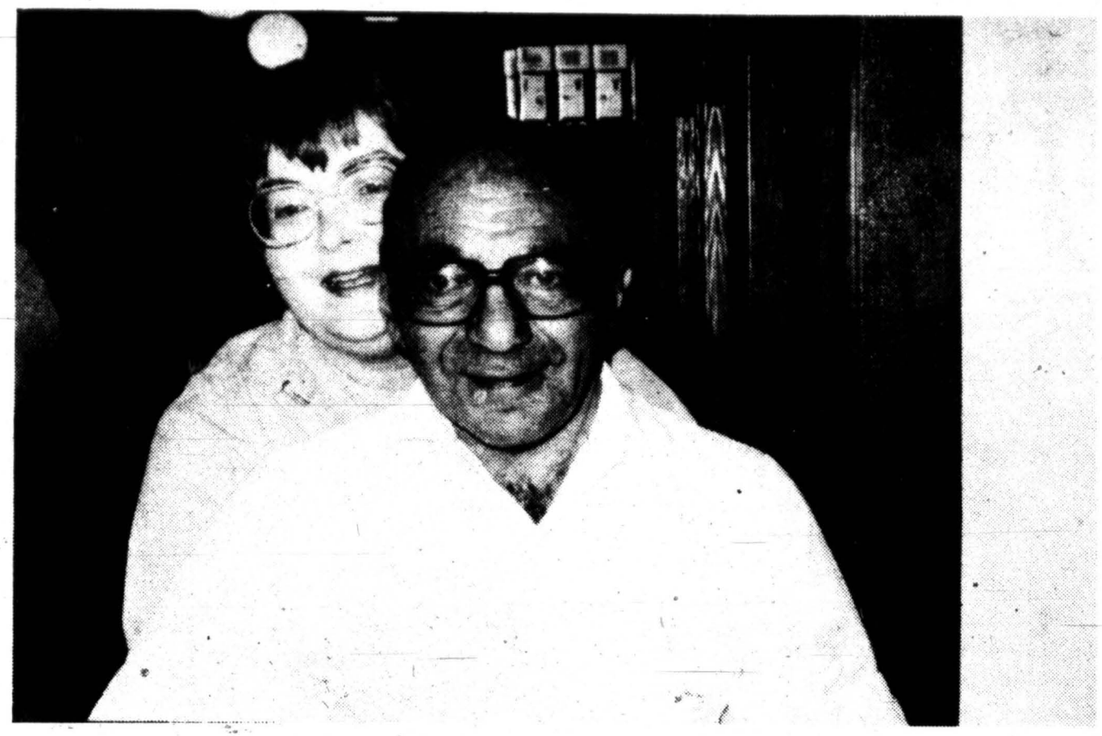
Lajigian has been trying to get permission from the city to sell gelato from his shop since May 1985. Is he happy now The Pine Cone asked?

"You bet," he said. "And I'll tell you, one of the nicest things about it is that while I'm walking up and down the street, I've been given thumbs up by people I meet who say 'You hung in there.' The response has been very, very positive."

The application is the first reviewed under the new "frozen dessert" ordinance approved earlier this year by the city council. The ordinance specifically exempts ice cream cones from the city ban on uncovered takeout food, a major stumbling block that prevented the previous planning commission from approving ice cream parlors serving ice cream cones.

Last year, the planning commission and city council's rejection of an application of such a business — based on increased water use, the uncovered takeout food ban and litter — not only brought national attention to Carmel but became an issue during the last mayoral and city council election.

The process to change the ordinance started during the election when the previous planning commission asked the then city council to review the ordinance which prohibited uncovered takeout food and other requirements that made an ice cream parlor type business impossible to approve.



THE WINNERS and still champions in the Great Ice Cream Race are Jean and Michael Lajigian, owners of Chocolate Dreams on Ocean Avenue. The Carmel Planning Commission on Oct. 8 approved their application for an ice cream parlor in the candy shop. They plan to open the parlor, yes, with ice cream cones, on Oct. 24. (Nancy Hills photo.)

The result was a subsection of the code for places that specialize in "frozen desserts" with a special exemption for the sale of ice cream cones. Lajigian's application was the only one left (out of several) after all was said and done.

Remodeling should begin in about week, Lajigian said, and he hopes to open Oct. 24. A grand opening party is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 14. Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood will be invited and all profits from the party will go to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, he added.

LAJIGIAN SAID he plans to sell cones, banana splits, sundaes and other forms of "frozen desserts," such as frozen yogurt, allowed by his permit. He also is looking into other types of ice cream, other than gelato, to sell.

Since Carmel is still negotiating with Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and is currently under a emergency building moratorium due to a water allocation shortage, special provisions for water use in the new parlor were added to the permit.

The provisions prohibit Lajigian from selling products that must be mixed, like milk shakes and malts, until the water problem is solved because the equipment must be constantly washed. Additionally, Lajigian must use bottled water for all clean up and customer drinking water.

The parlor will consist of eight counter seats and three tables with a total of 12 seats and a dipping counter with tubs of gelato and ice cream, Lajigian explained. He added he will continue selling candy as well.

To counteract the possible litter complaints, he told the commission he will institute a "litter patrol" to comb both sides of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos Streets.

IN ADDITION to the ice cream issue, the planning commission:

• Denied a lot line adjustment by George and Mary Kew to divide a single lot. The Kews own one of the oldest homes in Carmel, built in the late 1800s, which straddles two lots. They requested that the commission grant a variance so that the older home can partially be situated 300 ft. into the second lot and thereby meet site coverage requirements. A smaller house would be built on the portion left over.

Numerous petitions and letters were sent to the planning commission asking that the application be denied.

The commission unanimously voted against the request, after Commissioner Olof Dahlstrand stated he felt it was "subterfuge" and getting into very complicated zoning problems.

• Approved an application by Verne Ricketts to manufacture candy in The Candy Parlor in Carmel Plaza. The permit is conditioned not to go into effect until the water moratorium is lifted.

• Made an administrative decision that pizza is not a part of a bakery use permit. Richard Pepe, new owner of Wishart's Bakery on Ocean Avenue had requested the commission determine whether selling pizza slices from the bakery was in compliance with his use permit and building license.

The commission decided that if Pepe wished to sell pizza slices, he would have to apply for an amendment to his permit.

• Approved a design for a Agnes Gump's new single-family residence on Torres Street between Eighth and Ninth avenues. The approval is subject to the building moratorium being lifted.

We've taught more than 120,000 students to read.

We've taught reading longer than any other private program (since 1970, to be exact) and to more students—120,000 thus far. And not just through our private centers either, but through 61 public schools as well.

In fact, in established Reading Game areas, an amazing two-thirds of our students in basic and advanced reading, speed reading and SAT preparation come from teacher and parent referrals. Many teachers send us their own children, and some parents even enroll themselves (we teach adults, too).

Here's why:

All of our instructors are credentialed teachers with classroom experience and special training in reading and math.

The student/teacher ratio is never more than 3:1 and often is 1:1.

And our programs work. Eight hours of instruction over one month is worth more than two months of progress at school. On average, four months of instruction is worth a whole school year.

Plans for new Sunset Center theater take shape

By DAVID LELAND

THE FEASIBILITY study is officially underway for the proposed 1,500-seat Stanton Theater and 200-car underground parking garage at Sunset Cultural Center, with results due by Dec. 1, according to Burney Threadgill, president of Friends of Sunset Center.

Meanwhile, the city of Monterey is moving closer towards its own feasibility study for a performing arts center. Monterey, while still in the bid-taking stage, is "about three months" behind Carmel, according to Doug Schmitz, city administrator.

By definition a feasibility study will inform planners whether the peninsula can handle two theaters in such close proximity, but on a "gut level" the idea does not sound like a good one to Richard Tyler, Sunset Center director.

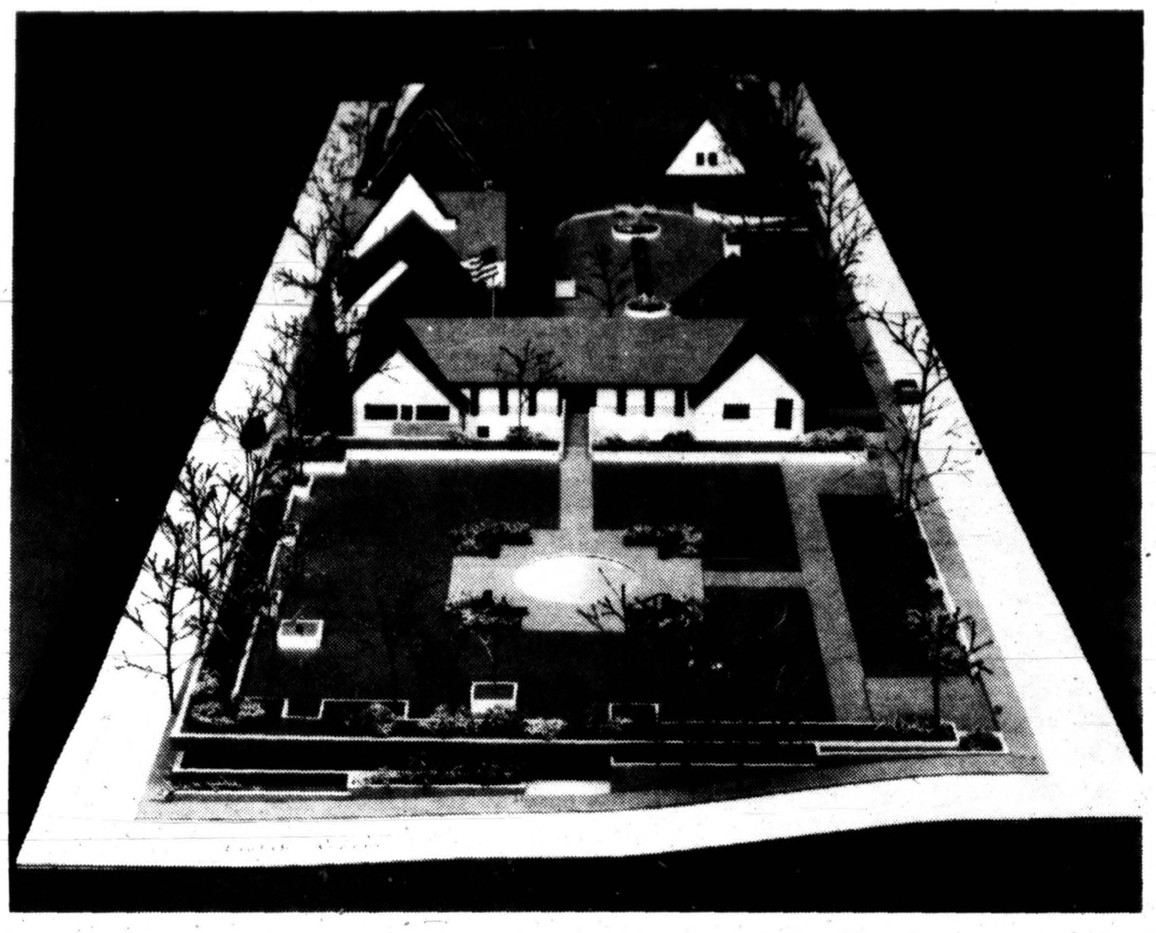
"Both sides would suffer," he said. "because the number of people to draw from for such a facility is not there."

Montery officials insist they are not competing with Carmel, but are only looking into the idea of a theater and still are at a stage where they could turn back at any time, according to Fred Meurer, special projects manager for Monterey.

"We could easily find that no matter how great the need there is not enough money to fund it," he said. He also said Monterey would "take into account what is going on in Carmel."

The proposed location for Monterey's cultural and performing arts center is on Del Monte Avenue, adjacent to the downtown parking garage, Meurer said. The city purchased this 3.2-acre parcel of land in 1983 for more than $3 million.

Meurer disagreed with Tyler in that the peninsula is a one-theater town. "It's conceivable that you could fill both," he said. "We may have a smaller facility, like the Salinas Community Center. Sherwood Hall in Salinas has a seating capacity of 1,533 people."



THE $25,000 feasibility study for the proposed Sunset Center expansion is underway, with a completion date estimated of Dec. 1. The proposed $10 million theater project also includes a town hall on the lower floor, rehearsal space and two activity rooms.

But Tyler said both cities should work together to enhance future cultural events on the peninsula.

"We should get behind one (theater) and realize that's where the cultural activity should be," Tyler said.

Tyler reiterated the need for a larger auditorium at Sunset Center by pointing out the latest casualty due to insufficient seating, which currently numbers 733.

"We turned away 200 people Tuesday night (Oct. 7)," he said. On that night the Carmel Music Society presented Leontyne Price, only season subscribers were able to attend.

Tyler said that most of the expenses were made up by the Carmel Music Society. He added that tickets in many cities to see Price would be in the $40 range.

AT ITS Aug. 5 meeting, the Carmel City Council granted $10,000 towards a $25,000 feasibility study for the proposed theater project. The remaining money for the study has come from private donations through Friends of Sunset Center, Threadgill said.

The Sunset Center feasibility study will be conducted by San Francisco-based consultant Richard Mickley.

A decade has passed since the theater was initially proposed by late architect Robert Stanton, with colleagues Walter Burde and Eugene Bayol Jr. Until now, the city has been reluctant to sanction the project, citing fears of additional tourist traffic and parking problems.

The proposed $10 million theater project also includes a town hall on the lower floor, rehearsal space and two activity rooms.

Mickley outlined several objectives in his feasibility study:

• Assess the needs of user groups for new and expanded performing arts facilities in Carmel. This includes likely levels of demand for the proposed facility in terms of estimated annual use-days by type of user.

• Develop inventory of existing and planned performing arts facilities on the peninsula. Schmitz said the city is well aware of Monterey's progress in establishing a feasibility study for a performing art center.

• Establish to what extent the public feels there is a need for the proposed expansion, and if it is built, how heavily it will be used by citizens of various communities on the peninsula.

• Determine whether Carmel location is positive, negative or neutral by citizens.

• Measure amount of broadly based financial support that might be expected from personal contributions and ongoing membership dues.

• Collect demographic information on the respondents.

Work on EIR for new dam is closer to completion

By NANCY HILLS

WORK ON the environmental impact report for the proposed 29,000 ac. ft. San Clemente Dam moved a step closer to completion last week.

During a dam workshop Oct. 9, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board approved maximum future water demand figures by the year 2020 as 24,943 ac. ft. and a goal of 15 percent reduction in water use through conservation. The numbers will be used in the EIR for the proposed dam, size determination and comparisons to other water supply projects. They will also be used as parameters in the district's computer model, a program used for projecting future water demand.

Though some of the numbers were challenged by Carmel developer Alan Williams as too low, the board voted to approve the statistics, a necessary action before moving on to the next step — reviewing alternatives to the dam. Water board chairman Dick Heuer told Williams they could reconsider the projections again at a later date.

The district's statistics on future water demand include increased water use through remodels and "intensification" or increased use per existing meters. Those factors were not included in the original allocation projections done in 1980-1981 and are now considered important in water use projections.

Use per meter was set at .544 ac. ft., derived from water use during 1966-1976, the period before the drought. After the drought, use per meter was down due to the strict conservation measures practiced by the peninsula residents and businesses. Consumption has been returning to pre-drought levels ever since.

The board also approved a range of water use in 2020 from 22,408 ac. ft. to 24,943 ac. ft., a 20 percent fluctuation based on water use behavior since 1951. Factors such as weather, with dry years increasing water demand and wet years decreasing, contribute to the fluctuations, Bruce Buel, water district general manager said.

According to the general plans and projections by the jurisdictions of future growth, Buel said, most of the activity would take place by the year 2000, then taper off. History showed a dramatic rise in water demand during the years from 1951 to 1966, when the peninsula experienced "extraordinary" growth, but that trend is not expected to continue, Buel said.

"Many communities are almost at maximum buildout now," he added.

BUEL told the board that existing use was set at 17,742 ac. ft. and future water demand was determined by EIP consultants working with the planning departments of the political jurisdictions within the district.

Using general plans and projections of the planning departments, EIP had projected growth in each of the six cities and portions of Monterey County within the district. Those growth projections were added to the existing use to determine demand in 2020, the year the dam is projected to supply the required water needs.

Williams, however, told the board he felt the statistics underestimated future demand which could lead to a dam that would not meet the needs of the community. Williams stated he felt that increased water use due to remodeling was too low and that graphs of historical water use indicated that demand was rising at a greater rate than predicted in the district chart.

As an example, Williams said that water use had been increasing an average of 400 ac. ft. a year and about 333 ac. ft. of that increase was unaccounted for by the district's statistics. Until they knew where that 333 ac. ft. was going, Williams said he did not think the board could accurately predict what future demand would be.

Williams objected to the 3 percent water use increase due to remodeling used by the district. That number is too low, he claimed, and said that information from the cities showed that their remodeling permits demonstrate remodeling activity in individual jurisdictions was much higher than the district-wide averages indicated.

Williams also said he felt that a 15 percent decrease in water use through conservation was possibly unattainable.

"People like their showers," he said, though he agreed that in 35 years (the time span for conservation drive) most toilets would have been replaced through attrition.

Heuer, however, told Williams that it was better that the board was taking a fairly conservative approach because "the dam is being designed that if we are wrong, they can easily go back and make it higher (increase its storage capacity.) Otherwise, we do risk having the community pay for more than necessary."

Town hall meeting set for beach restoration project

By DAVID LELAND

FOR THOSE residents who can't hack the political maneuverings and tedium of the monthly city council meeting but still want to be heard, Nov. 3 will offer a chance to vent feelings, frustrations and suggestions to the city council at a town hall meeting.

The town hall meeting, to be held at 6 p.m. Monday, Nov. 3 in the theater at Sunset Center, will allow residents, among other things, a chance to speak out and review options for the Phase II Beach Restoration Plan. The city council is scheduled to act on the plan at its Nov. 4 meeting, according to Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk.

The Beach Task Force presented its report to the city council at its Oct. 4 meeting, outlining plans for 104 parking spaces on Scenic Drive. These plans are contrary to the original architect's drawings which called for only 66 parking slots.

Councilmembers at that time unanimously agreed to hold a town hall meeting to provide an adequate forum for citizens to be heard.

Mayor Clint Eastwood, who promised during his campaign to let all of Carmel's residents be allowed to take part in city government, has also taken the Nov. 3 meeting as an opportunity to make good on that promise. Call it a six-month checkup.

"He said he would check back with the citizens," said Sue Hutchinson, aide to the mayor. "He wants to know their wishes, thoughts and input."

A town hall meeting is not an action-taking event for the city council. This is why the Beach Restoration Project is scheduled for the Nov. 4 city council meeting, Brehmer said. This will allow the council to directly respond to the citizens wishes.

The format, Brehmer said, will be to set up tables in front of the room where the city council will sit. Residents expressing a desire to talk will then sign a list which asks for the specific topic they will address.

In the past five years, Brehmer said there has only been one town hall meeting, which dealt with the general plan during the last administration. She said this meeting will be "open-ended."

"Everybody can come and everybody can speak," she said. "That's the object of it."

Journalists seek new angles on Carmel's mayor

By DAVID LELAND

LAST WEEK, on a miniature scale compared to April's election, the international press corps invaded Carmel. Ostensibly the press were here to give the mayor a six-month policy review, but on further examination it appeared politics had little to do with it.

The Pine Cone took a little time out from its own coverage to take a closer look at what it's like to pop into town for a quick story on the city's famous mayor.

"The local issues aren't interesting," said Ann McDermott of Cable News Network. "It's a movie star becoming a successful mayor — that's interesting."

McDermott and her TV crew of three spent the day following hot on the trail Mayor Clint Eastwood. Taking the movie star angle for a story which was viewed by between "one and two million" viewers.

"The way that a famous man handles problems (is important)," McDermott said. "The fact that he would even involve himself."

McDermott said it was decided shortly after the election in April to do an update on Eastwood. McDermott also pointed out that this was not a pleasure trip.

"It's a nice town but we really don't have time to enjoy it," she said. An overnight trip to Carmel would be more than many could hope for.

Also taking the six-month checkup angle was Rhoderick Sharp of BBC.

Sharp, who was in Carmel getting sound for a British radio show called P.M. Britain, brought 40 yards of microphone cord to snake in and about the city council meeting.

"I want to record everything that happens," he said. "I'm waiting for the hitting of the gavel."

Sharp said his radio show would be heard by between one and two million listeners. He also made it very clear that, while down for a six-month review, the local issues were not important; people in Britian just want to hear Eastwood.

FOR RHODERICK Sharp of BBC, sound was the main ingredient for success. Sharp carted 40 yards of microphone cord around the Oct. 7 city council meeting in an effort to "hear the tough-guy mayor doing his job."

"People just want to hear this tough-guy mayor doing his job," he said. "Whatever he says is just great."

But, as usual, one person has to get the short end of the stick. In this case it was a television reporter from German TV station ZDF.

Hans Scheicher, an anchorman on Europe's biggest television network for the past four years, said he was unaware that any other press would be in Carmel.

"I'm here because I want to know about this town," he said. "How has Carmel changed because of him."

Scheicher really did seem interested in Carmel's issues. Perhaps it is because he takes a harder look at the news on his show, which he likened to CBS's 60 Minutes.

GERMAN TV anchorman Hans Scheicher came to town hoping to see "how Carmel has changed because of him." Instead he became one of many press people attending the Oct. 7 city council meeting at the Carmel Woman's Club.

"I'm just interested in the issues," he said. "I'm not expecting anything sensational."

Scheicher said the show, which was to have aired last weekend, would be seen by as many as eight million people throughout Europe and Scandanavia.

To round out the interviews The Pine Cone talked to a photojournalist, who came to Carmel at the request of her photo agency, Gamma.

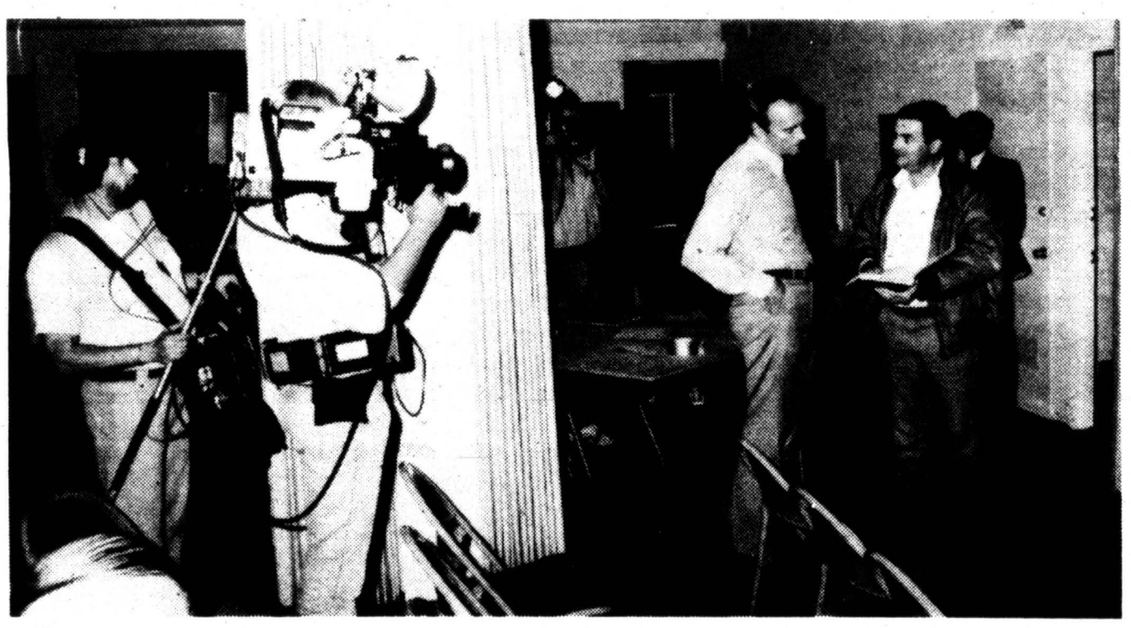
Shahn Kermani said she was sent to Carmel to take shots of Eastwood for a German magazine whose name she couldn't pronounce. She also didn't realize there would be so much press attending the city council meeting on Oct. 7.

MUCH TO her surprise, Ann McDermott, Cable Network News, discovered press people galore in Carmel when she arrived. Her network was doing a six-month update on "the way a famous man handles problems."

"I probably picked a bad time to come," she said. "It just so happened I came up here."

For Kermani it was especially distressing that Eastwood requested that no flash-bulbs go off during the council meeting. But the veteran photographer had her own remedy while she awaited the end of the meeting.

"When my sunglasses go down it's all over," she said. "That's when I go to sleep."



THE CENTER of attention for news media crews during a break in city council action was — who else? — Mayor Clint Eastwood, who recently completed his first six months in office, thus the intense scrutiny at the Oct. 7 meeting. (Mac McDonald photos.)

Modern dentistry can do wonderful things for unsightly smiles.

Discolored, stained, chipped, and missing teeth cause many people to never smile and lose self-confidence.

Porcelain bonding and natural looking caps can close spaces, repair broken teeth, and whiten a smile.

Non-removable teeth can improve your appearance, speech, and provide self-confidence.

Sand sculptors will invade beach this Sunday

IT'S THAT time of the year again, time for sand and water and buckets and shovels and twigs and seaweed. No it's not storm season at the beach, but the Great Sand Castle Contest on Carmel Beach.

The 1986 version of the sand castle extravaganza (whose date has been kept secret until now) with the theme "Build Your Dream" will take place Sunday, Oct. 19 between Eighth and 13th avenues on Carmel Beach. That's the south end of the beach, a point that organizers would like to stress.

"We'd like to emphasize that it will be held between Eighth and 13th, not the whole beach," said Great Sand Marshall Marvin Guillermo emphatically. "Our judges are not agile youngsters willing to run all over the beach all day just because you set up your project on the WRONG END!"

Of course Guillermo has a suggestion for those unable (or unwilling to follow those simple rules).

"Contestants with projects at the WRONG end of the beach — north end — will be requested to MOVE them to the south end just before judging."

Touchy, touchy.

Actually there are very few "rules" to this popular annual event, in fact anyone who has ever witnessed the event knows that anarchy runs rampant...along with the stray dogs.

For example, from the official "rules" comes this: "Arbitrary judging is the rule. Judges refusing bribes or acting with fairness and sensitivity are to be denounced on the spot." Notice they get to keep their jobs. And, "Complaints about the way judging is done...are encouraged. Please present your complaints neatly written in the sand. They will be reviewed by a special inquiry panel the following day at 4 p.m."

Judging (??) begins at 2 p.m., there's no admission fees, pre-registration fees, sand fees, etc., just bring something to bribe the judges, preferably something to impair their "good judgment."

Awards will be given in several categories, including: Novice Sand Pile, Advanced Sand Box, Theme Award, Grand Sand Award, and of course, the Sour Grapes Award ("If you get it you deserve it.")

The event is sponsored annually by the Monterey chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Judges (five from the city of Carmel and five from AIA) include: Bill Brown, Joan DeMers, Councilmember Elinor Laiolo, Tim Meroney, and Ken White from Carmel, and Jeanne Byrne, Len Cardoni, Ted Larson, Mike McNally, and Joyce Stevens from AIA. Sand marshalls include Susan Bailey, Greg Bosler, Keeth Lichtenberger, Alex Londos and Kathy Smith. Photography marshall will be Gaely Lichtenberger and presiding judge, David Elliot.

Some final "rules" organizers want to stress are: "All dogs — loose or no — are banned," and "Commercial advertising shows no class. All caught dogs will be set within any such project."

You've been warned. Now go out there are have some fun.

SOLUTION TO Carmel's parking problems? No, this was a whimsical entry in last year's Carmel Great Sand Castle Contest on Carmel Beach. This year the popular annual event will be held Sunday, Oct. 19 between Eighth and 13th avenues on the beach.

Carmel building inspector 'Butch' Maloney moves on

AFTER SIX and a half years of climbing roofs, poking in basements, thumping walls and being chased by irate raccoons, Carmel building inspector Chiharu "Butch" Maloney has made a tough decision. He's moving on.

Not that he's going far. Just to Monterey, where he will be a building inpector again. But in this case, an inch is as good as a mile, and leaving behind one's co-workers is difficult. Wednesday, Oct. 15 was his last day.

"He's one of the family and we're all sorry to see him leave," said Jana Weston, planning and building department administrative assistant. The feeling is mutual.

"Every one here has helped me through any rough spots in my life. All the good memories — that's what makes leaving Carmel so hard," Maloney said.

"Losing him is going to change things around here," Diane White, planning director observed. She added that Maloney's years in Carmel had been a help to her when she first arrived on the job and his easygoing personality an asset to his position.

The job hasn't been dull, and working in Carmel involves unique circumstances that make it particularly enjoyable, Maloney said.

Like working on a beautiful house along the beach or the advantages of working in a small town.

"That's one thing about Carmel," Maloney said. "You feel you can have an effect on the things. You see something and it registers."

Though his position entailed enforcement of rules not everyone welcomed with open arms, Maloney said, "most people have been good" to him.

The most difficult problem to handle in Carmel, he said, are second kitchens, now called subordinate units by the general plan committee.

"You go on an inspection and there is a gaping hole (the size of a sink), or the first time we go in there is a stove and the second there isn't."

It puts the enforcement people into a difficult position, Maloney said.

From his experience, he added, the people who live in second kitchens are the young, single working people in town.

But second kitchens or no, Maloney still has pangs about his departure.

"These six and a half years have been the fastest in my life," Maloney said.

And Carmel will miss him, too.

Liquor sales, expansion tops planning agenda

HACIENDA RESTAURANT liquor sales, dividing of the Carmel Vintage Shoppe and single-family home additions all are on the agenda for the next meeting of Carmel Planning Commission.

The commission will meet 4 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 22 in Carmel City Council Chambers to consider:

• A request by Jack Brushert to sell hard liquor in his newly-acquired Mexican restaurant, Hacienda, on the corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

Currently the restaurant, located in the service commercial district, has a beer and wine bar.

• An application by Julian Bills to build a two-story office building on the east side of Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

The property currently has a single-family home with a double garage in back. Bills has applied to change it into office space and add a second story to the garage and do exterior work on the house to match the addition. The offices would be used primarily for Bills' own businesses.

• A use permit for Robert and Cindi Johnston to sell prepackaged food baskets from Adam's Pot Belly Stove, formerly an antique and gift shop, on Fifth Avenue between Junipero Avenue and Mission Street.

• Review a request by Jack Hakim to divide Carmel Vintage Shoppe, a liquor store on the eastside of Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. The application triggers the master use permit process.

The master use permit ordinance mandates that when a single space is divided to increase the number of commercial areas in a building, the entire site must be reviewed for compliance with parking restrictions and non-conforming uses identified. If parking cannot be provided on-site, either off-site parking must be found or the payment of in-lieu fees at approximately $22,000 a parking space be paid. The current definition is for one parking space for every 1,000 square feet.

The application may be continued until the issue of "adequate parking" is settled by the city council, planning commission and general plan committee.

• A design review application by Lee Hill continued from the previous meeting. Hill has submitted plans to the city to remodel an existing home on San Antonio between Second and Fourth avenues. A previous decision to subdivide the property was turned down by the planning commission.

Low-income housing applications available

THE HOUSING Authority of the County of Monterey will be accepting applications for housing for low-income families.

The county will be accepting applications for a period of 90 days in order to establish a waiting list for its Conventional Low Rent Section 8 Assisted Housing Program.

Applications will be accepted until Nov. 7. For more information call 424-2892 or 649-1541.

Goodwill has Halloween costumes

Throughout the year, Goodwill Industries sets aside donated costumes and unusual things that imaginative revelers of all ages can put together for prize-winning disguises.

The stored stock had become so big, by the time to get ready for Halloween, that Goodwill senior staff — president and department heads — were all pressed into emergency service to help sort and process contents of accumulated barrels.

Out of those barrels came wigs and wild hats, tutus, real grass hula skirts, explorers' outfits, animals, vegetables, human-size crayons, monks' robes, hoop skirts, things covered with spangles, space characters, masks, the large-size evening gowns favored by males, and hundreds of other garments and accessories ready for creative combining.

They all reached Goodwill stores by Oct. 10, in time to prepare for the big day and evening.

FUNDS ASSURED

The success of the Mission pageant held on Oct. 2nd for the purpose of arousing interest among Californians in the restoration of the famous old Carmel Mission, Father Raymond M. Mestres, the parish priest in Carmel and Monterey, has been assured of aid from many sources.

Plans call for the rebuilding of the Mission and the great quadrangle at a cost of $125,000. The work will be done under the supervision of Bernard R. Maybeck, San Francisco architect, and J.J. Mora, well-known sculptor.

THRILLING SCENES ENACTED AT "FIRE"

As the climax to a week devoted to Fire Prevention, Carmel volunteer fire department staged a big street show last Thursday night, in connection with its regular weekly fire drill. A blast on the siren more prolonged than that which usually summons the boys to Thursday night drill, also brought a goodly number of citizens to the scene at Ocean and Dolores. Department equipment was brought into play; the engines screamed to a stop at the scene of the "fire", the Leidig grocery store.

A thrilling "rescue" was staged, involving some pretty rough handling for a dummy who represented the rescued man.

BRIEFS . . .

The 40-foot commercial fishing vessel Maku is still stranded at the mouth of the Carmel River. The boat drifted onto the beach Saturday night when the anchor failed to hold offshore during a heavy wind. Rescued after being swept overboard were Fred Eastmalley of Winchester Bay, Oregon, owner of the boat, and Orville H. Stees of Inglewood, crewman. Both men have left here and a private party will try to float or salvage the Maku.

WHERE TO OLD CARMEL?

It seems obvious that a need exists for a group like Old Carmel. We applaud its apparent victory at the Village Corner and agree wholeheartedly with its general statement of purpose.

Residents rallied emotionally to save a local haunt from its threatened fate of becoming yet another series of small shops. And this single act spawned a group that is potentially the most politically viable and powerful force in Carmel.

Because of its sincere and fledgling nature, we hesitate to criticize a group with goals so obviously desirable. These people do, in fact, reflect the viewpoints of a goodly number of residents.

Who in Carmel does not want to preserve its character and who does not cringe at the sight of summer's hordes of tourists? Who would not like to see tour buses regulated strictly?

But stating a goal gives little indication of how that goal is to be accomplished. Politicians are well noted for that. Ideals are necessary, but only as effective as the plans for implementing them.

COUNCIL CAN'T AGREE TO SPEND FOR CONSERVATION $700

Can Carmel afford $700 to supply residents with water conservation kits?

The Carmel City Council couldn't agree on that question so it designated Councilmen Frank Lloyd and Mike Brown as a committee to study the issue and make a recommendation.

A request for Carmel to participate in the water conservation kit program came from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District at the Oct. 5 meeting.

Water use in Carmel has reached 93.5 percent of the city's total allocation by the water management district, and Carmel Planning Commission members recently expressed a concern about water supplies to meet future needs.

Feldenkrais Method introduced

A free introductory class in the Feldenkrais Method will be offered to new students from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 22, in room eight at Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

It will be presented by Michael Purcell, M.A., authorized practitioner of the method. Those interested in the free class must call first, 646-1366.

The Feldenkrais Method is a system for improving human functioning. It allows the elderly and handicapped to learn to move more easily and comfortably, artists and athletes to sharpen their performance skills and everyone to increase their awareness of their bodies and themselves.

Reagan-Gorbachev summit discussed

Constance Hamilton Cole, a faculty member at San Francisco State University, will be the featured speaker at the Saturday, Oct. 18 meeting of the World Affairs Council of the Monterey Bay Area.

Cole's topic will be "The Reagan-Gorbachev Summit: Reality or Shattered Hopes?" She has taught at various American colleges, and currently conducts a graduate seminar on Soviet politics at San Francisco State, as well as courses on U.S. foreign policy and international relations.

Luncheon will be served at noon at Rancho Canada Country Club in Carmel Valley. The lecture will begin at 1 p.m. Admission is $8.50 for members, $9.50 for nonmembers and $4 for students. For reservations, call 372-6355, 624-2524 or 624-9735.

Furniture auction benefits school

Quality furniture and antiques are still being accepted as tax-deductible donations to the Waldorf School Furniture Auction. The auction will begin at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 in the Fine Arts Building of the Monterey Fairgrounds. For details, call 625-1677.

Benefit art festival, sale planned

The Central Coast Art Association is sponsoring an art festival and sale to benefit the scholarship fund, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 at the Masonic Temple, Central and Lighthouse, Pacific Grove.

Paintings by local artists, used art supplies, art magazines and collectibles will be for sale. Food, prepared by the Woman's Civic Club of Pacific Grove, will also be available for purchase.

CHALK MARKS

An exciting, growing year

By SHARRON DOUGLAS

WELCOME TO the fifth-grade boys and girls! This year we will:

- •Be the leaders of the school
- •Prepare for the big step to Middle School
- •Assist as peer tutors in the lower grades
- •Become even more responsible and independent
- •Participate in a theater arts activity
- •Create a Math Carnival for the entire school to enjoy
- •Participate in a new, revised science curriculum
- •Learn more about computers
- •Graduate from River School in a gala Recognition Day ceremony

These are a few of the opening comments made to fifth-graders by their teachers.

The fifth-grade is indeed an exciting, growing year for the students at River School. In addition to the basic curriculum, we try to provide a multitude of enrichment activities for the children.

We are happy to welcome Kathy Eyerman to River School this year. She has had extensive teaching and substituting experience, and was selected from a field of more than 100 candidates for the fifth-grade teacher opening at our school.

Kathy has three children — one who attends Carmel Middle School and two who are enrolled at Tularcitos. Kathy's special interests are computer education and science. Her positive and supportive approach to children are among the many attributes which made her a strong addition to our staff.

Mary Ann George has spent many years in the public school system. Her daughter is in the first-grade at River School. Mary Ann is a strong academician and has particular interests in various curricular areas. She assisted in the revision of the CUSD science curriculum this past summer. Mary Ann participated in the Bay Area Writing Project and implements these philosophies and practices in her writing program. We are fortunate indeed, to have this caring and creative person on our staff.

"Superstars" provides a unique opportunity for students to participate in Theater Arts. Patrick Allan, who teaches a fourth/-fifth combination class this year, is the creator and driving force behind this enriching program for students. For the past several years, Mr. Allan has produced and directed a musical for fifth-grade students. Not only do the students perform, they create sets, learn about lighting, makeup and costuming. Every interested student has a role. The production is presented each May at Sunset Center.

Graduation in June is the culmination of six years of attendance at River School for many of our children. They leave with mixed feelings — nostalgia for past highlights and memories, and an eagerness to accept the challenge of moving into a new phase in their lives — Carmel Middle School. They have progressed through what we consider an exemplary school and are well-prepared for the years ahead.

Smoking pamphlet available

Is there a safe tobacco? That's the question answered by a new American Lung Association pamphlet available free to the public this month at toll-free 800-824-7888, Operator 535.

The pamphlet covers the health risks of snuff, chewing tobacco, cigars and pipes, clove cigarettes and low-yield cigarettes.

According to Fay Catlett, program coordinator of the local American Lung Association of Monterey, Santa Cruz & San Luis Obispo counties, the booklet offer coincides with the opening of school when youngsters may be forced to make decisions about using one or more tobacco products.

"It used to be that kids were faced with a single question — to smoke or not to smoke cigarettes. But now an entire buffet of tobacco products is readily available," Catlett said.

"Some, like clove cigarettes and low-yield cigarettes, are finding a market even among health-conscious kids, because of a common misconception that these products are safer than conventional cigarettes. But that just isn't true."

Catlett said that use of smokeless tobacco products like snuff and chewing tobacco is becoming especially popular among young athletes. "Here again, the belief is that smokeless tobacco is harmless. But in reality snuff and chewing tobacco are linked to mouth cancer, throat cancer, gum disease and other health problems," she said.

Catlett said that in addition to the American Lund Association pamphlet called "Is there a safe tobacco?" people who phone the Lung Association's toll-free number this month will receive free stickers.

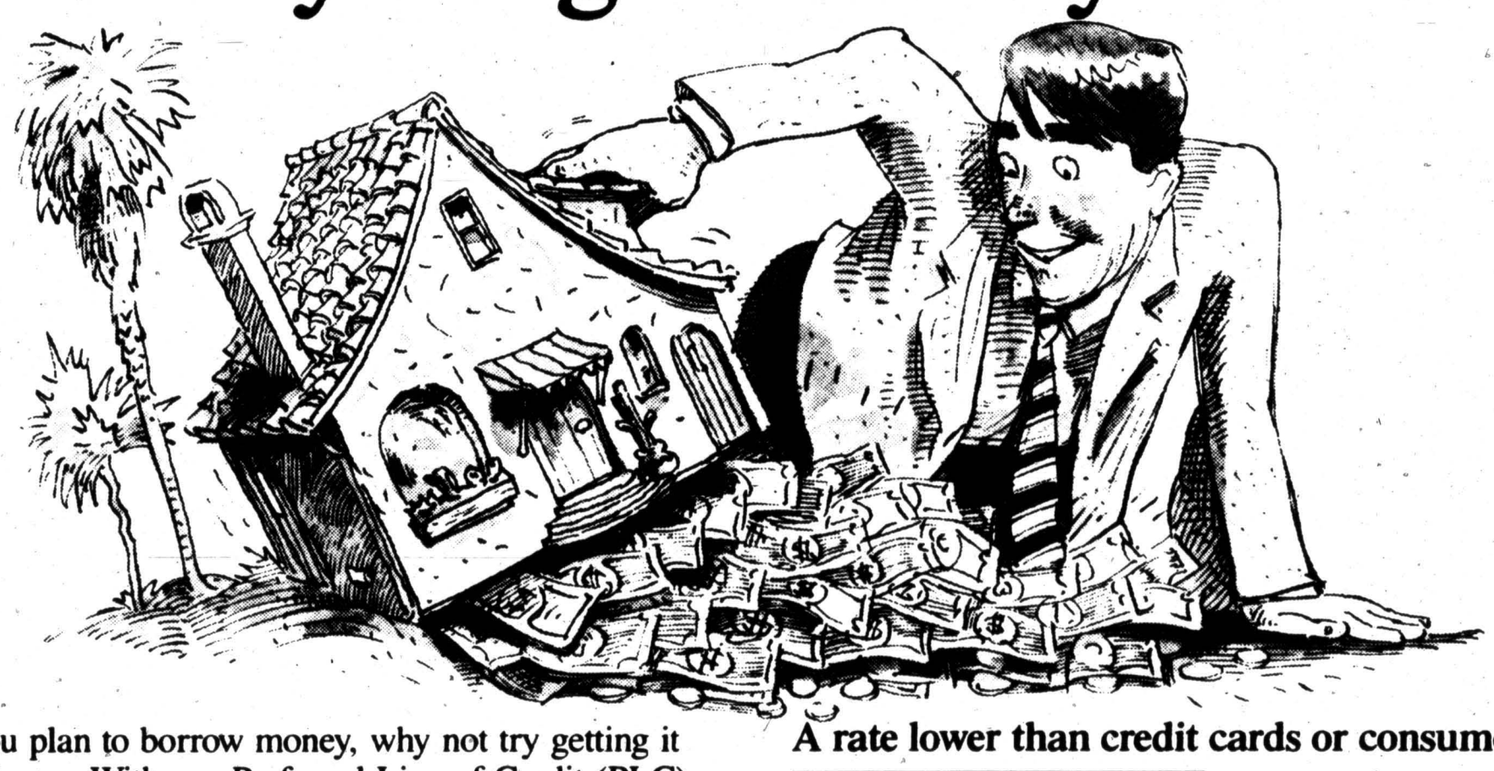
With today's tax reforms, your best source for borrowing money is right where you live.



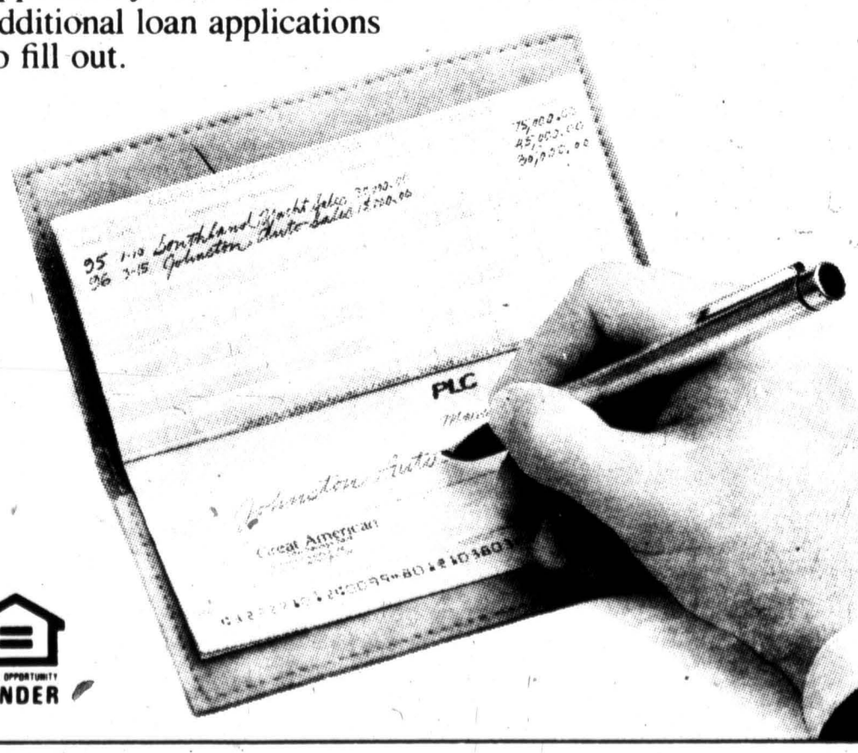
If you plan to borrow money, why not try getting it right at home. With our Preferred Line of Credit (PLC), you can borrow against the equity you've built in your house. And get a loan up to $100,000. Instantly. It's as easy as writing a check.

A tax advantage even after tax reform.

When the new tax laws take effect next year, many deductions for interest paid on consumer loans will no longer be allowed. However, Great American's PLC may offer an attractive alternative. In many cases, interest paid on a home equity credit line will still be deductible.

Money any time you want. For anything you want.

With our PLC, you simply write a check whenever you need money. For whatever you want. A home improvement. New car or boat. Vacation. Or investment opportunity. There's no need to visit the bank. No additional loan applications to fill out.



EQUAL OPPORTUNITY LENDER

A rate lower than credit cards or consumer loans.

8.96%* APR
Variable rate effective through 10/31/86.

A Great American PLC means you pay lower interest rates than is charged for most credit cards and consumer loans. What's more, no interest is charged until you write your first PLC check. And your payments can be as low as interest-only.

For details on how to open your own PLC, contact your local Great American office. Or call our Financial Line at 1-800-423-BANK.

Special Offer: 50% off loan points!

Right now, we've reduced our normal PLC loan points from 1½ to just ¾ of a percentage point. Which could save you a substantial amount of money, depending on the amount of your credit line. But hurry. This special discount ends November 7, 1986.

PINE WHISPERS

Playing whack and chase

DR. HUGH Owen of Jeffersonville, Ind. was recently given an award and prizes for sleeping with his golf bag on his honeymoon, among other things.

No, this wasn't some weird award from a quasi-misogynist society, merely the top award from Carmel-based Golfaholics Anonymous, the brainchild of one Mark Oman, a certified golfaholic himself. Owen was presented the award — appropriately enough on a fairway at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club — as "1986 Golfaholic of the Year" for his years of "shameless ball-beating behavior."

As part of his award Owen was given two rounds of golf at two of the area's top courses (one being the CVG&CC if you hadn't guessed), accomodations at Quail Lodge, an original painting of Gary Patterson's The Golf Lover and a videocassette of his performance on the aforementioned courses, as well as appearances on The Today Show, Good Morning America, and CNN.

Owen was nominated by his "usually understanding wife" Barbara. Among the choice bits from her winning nomination were:

"Our vacation movies and slides are 90 percent golf, 10 percent family, and while he can tell anyone what hole, on what course, and what he scored on each picture, he can barely remember the names of his relatives in the pictures."

And this: "I could go on describing the times he played during tornado warnings, hurricanes in Myrtle Beach and Miami and snowstorms — clearing a path in the snow to putt. When he dies I'm sure he will want his clubs in the coffin so he can tee-off as soon as the first tee is clear, regardless of the course location."

Now that's dedication!

Owen, however, is no hacker. He sports a 5-handicap and plays golf four times a week on the average (he's played Pebble Beach about a dozen times, he said). Now try and guess what his occupation is. Of course he's a doctor. Dermatology no less. No jokes about golf getting under your skin, however.

Keep swinging.

GOLFAHOLIC OF the Year Dr. Hugh T. Owen of Jeffersonville, Ind., gets congratulations from Mark Oman of Carmel, founder of Golfaholics Anonymous, during ceremonies held at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club recently. Owen, who was nominated by his "usually understanding wife" Barbara, said he plays about four times a week and has played in storms, hurricanes and snow, demonstrating the "ball-beating behavior" of a true golfaholic. He even went to sleep on his honeymoon with his golf bag tucked in beside him (Barbara put it there). He was awarded with a plaque, a original painting by Gary Patterson, The Golf Lover and a round of golf at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. (Mac McDonald photo.)

CONSULTANT TO ADDRESS SLOAT DAR

Gordon Paul Smith of Carmel will address the membership of the Commodore Sloat Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution at a luncheon meeting Tuesday, Oct. 21 at the Casa Munras Garden Hotel in Monterey.

Smith was a consultant to the Hoover Commission and is now a consultant in the Middle East on organizational and intelligence matters. Mrs. Joseph Tully, chapter national defense chairman is the program hostess.

Other matters at the meeting will pertain to preparations for Christmas for veteran patients. Laura White, chapter chairman for service to veteran patients, will be accepting wrapped Christmas gifts as well as monetary donations for coupon books.

As the holidays near she will take these items of cheer to the veterans in the medical center at Palo Alto.

Regent Mrs. William Gooley reminds members to bring a Christmas ornament to the luncheon meeting also. These will be used for veterans' Christmas dinner favors at the hospital. Also, craft items are needed for the VA Medical Center. Contact Mrs. Gooley at 372-7492 for more information.

UNITED NATIONS DAY CELEBRATED

The Monterey Bay Chapter of the United Nations Association will join in on the worldwide celebration of United Nations Day with a noon luncheon, Friday Oct. 24 at the Barbara McNitt ballroom of the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

Dr. Leslie Lipson, professor emeritus of University of California, will speak on the topic, "Our Planet — Ignited or United?"

Cost is $10 per person. For reservations and further information call N. Kanakaris at 649-3457.

The meeting, which starts at 12:45 p.m., is free and open to the public; lunch cost is $4. For reservations call Evelyn Peterson at 649-5090.

STANFORD ALUMNI CLUB TO MEET

Stanford professor Dr. Herant Katchadourian will speak on "Transitions of Adult Life: The Physical and Psychological Aspects" at a meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Stanford Alumni Club, 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 at Monterey Conference Center. A wine reception will follow his talk. Reservations are required and the fee is $12.50. For information call 624-8851 or 646-1994.

CONFERENCE FOR CAREGIVERS AND EDUCATORS SET

"Changing Issues in Early Childhoood Education" is the theme of a conference set for 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 in the Santa Lucia Room at the Salinas Community Center.

Ann Gordon, executive director of the National Association of Episcopal Schools in New York, will be the keynote speaker.

Workshops will be available in a variety of subjects, AIDS, young children and computers, new concepts in science, Beyond War, and refusal skills for young children.

Late registration is $17 at the door. For further information contact Joyce Wenig at 758-9861.

DIRECTOR OF BUSINESS EXECUTIVES FOR NATIONAL SECURITY TO ADDRESS NEW FORUM

Bernard V. Ward, director of the western region of BENS (Business Executives for National Security), a former legislative assistant to Rep. Barbara Boxer and the man who brought to light massive overspending by the armed services, such as the Air Force's $7,000 coffee machine, will speak to The New Forum at its monthly luncheon at noon Monday, Oct. 20 at The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Ward's topic will be "The Business and Politics of Nuclear War."

Reservations, at $13 for lunch and Ward's talk, can be made by calling May Waldroup at 624-1803.

CARMEL KIWANIS WINE AND CHEESE TASTING SET

The Carmel Kiwanis will hold its Third Annual Charity Wine and Cheese Tasting from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 22 at the Highlands Inn.

Wineries (to date) include: Talbott, Morgan, Durney, Monterey Peninsula, Carmel Bay, J. Lohr, and Chateau Julien.

For tickets call 624-9197 or write to PO Box R-1, Carmel 93921, or inquire at Village Shoe Tree, Dick Bruhn, Surf 'N

GOLF...and CHIROPRACTIC

Possibly the most important part of ones golf game is his rhythm. I don't know how many times my golf pro friend, Jack Redmond, has said it — but it seems like "Swing to the music," is a favorite phrase of his. We've all reached those barriers where we just couldn't quite break 90 or 80 and that little thing that probably stopped us was our rhythm. To have good rhythm we must have symetrical muscle tone in the back. Often when vertebra are twisted or subluxated the body compensates by tightening the muscles on just one side of the spine. This one-side tightness will definitely effect your rhythm. As a matter of fact, we usually intuitively realize something just "doesn't feel right," we step back, swing the club a few times and then readdress the ball. Our swing feels better but the resulting hook or slice tells us that something is still wrong. Chiropractic, by gently manipulating those immobile vertebrae, helps restore ones natural athletic rhythm.

BAHA'IS SEEKING HUMANITARIAN NOMINATIONS

The Baha'is of the Monterey Bay area are requesting nominations for the Seventh annual Human Rights Award luncheon. The local person selected for this honor must be someone who has performed significant service as an avocation in the field of human rights.

Past awards were presented to Nanita Monhollan for her assistance with the handicapped; Nancy Costello for her continued help with the physical needs of the Salinas Valley farm workers; Wilfred Tosch for his efforts witht the hearing impairment program; Nell Meyer, an active participant with the Seeing-Eye dog program and braille for the blind; William Monning, an active proponent of Human Rights in Central America and the Salinas Valley; and Rosemary Matson, a peace activist.

If you have a nomination, please mail the name and description of service along with your name to Baha'i Human Rights Award Committee, P.O. Box 1131, Monterey, CA, 93940. Please place this nomination by Nov. 9.

The Human Rights Award Luncheon will be held at noon Monday Dec. 8 at the Casa Munras in Monterey.

For further information call Dennis Gayle at 649-0821.

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK SIGN-UPS

The Boronda 4-H and its members recently celebrated National 4-H Week, Oct. 5-11.

Have you been thinking about joining 4-H? Well, this is the right time for you, if you are 9 years of age (or in the fourth-grade by Dec. 31, 1986) through 18 years of age.

Members of the club have a monthly meeting in which they discuss business and their projects. There are many projects to choose from, such as horse, lamb, swine, goats, rabbits, arts and crafts, photography, aerospace and rockets, cake decorating, and sewing just to name a few.

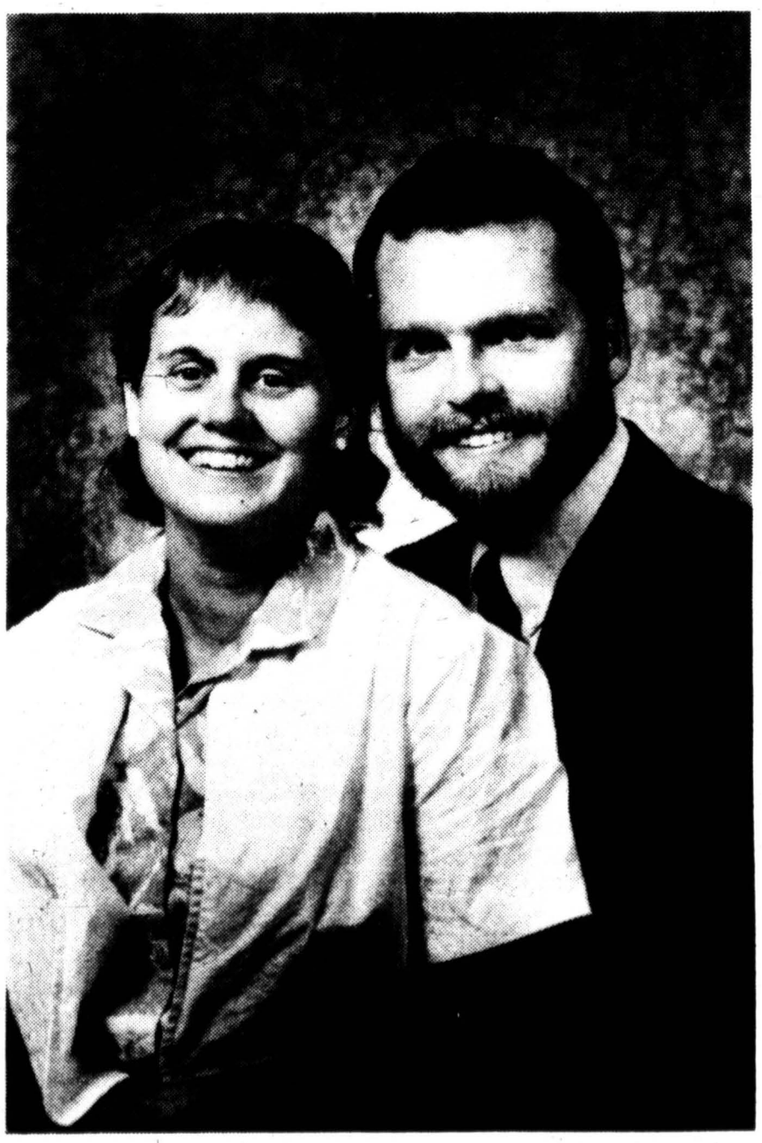
Members of the club are from the various cities that make up the Monterey Peninsula. This is a very active 4-H Club and encourages anyone interested to call 624-1015 for further information about sign-ups.

ALL SAINTS FALL FESTIVAL AND AUCTION

All Saints School will hold its annual Fall Festival and Auction from 11 a.m to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 at the school.

All Saints is located 4.5 miles from Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road. This will be a fun day for the entire family. There will be entertainment including the Pacific Grove High School Band, a children's costume parade, bagpipes, a pocket clown, and much more.

If you have any questions, please contact the school at 624-9171.



GEOFF BLAKESLEE, a native of Carmel, and his wife Kim of Carmichael, recently joined the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International, an interdenominational Christian organization based in Arrowhead Springs in Southern California. Blakeslee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Blakeslee of Carmel.

FOSTER FAMILIES NEEDED FOR CHILDREN WITHIN MONTEREY COUNTY

Children's Services Center announces a recruitment effort to develop several new foster family homes within our county to care for children between the ages of 3 and 16 years.

In 1985, the center created a specialized foster family program to serve the children and youth within Monterey County. This specialized program makes it possible for children to remain in foster care in our county which encourages contact with their families or to meet their educational goals and be ready for emancipation as young adults.

Children's Services Center offers support services to foster families, regular counseling for children, education and training specially designed for foster families, and financial support.

The center is a non-profit, state licensed adoption and homefinding agency benefitting the children, parents and families here in our county. If your family has room in their lives for a child with special needs, please call Nancy Murphy or Carol Biddle at 649-3033.

Nine Robert Louis Stevenson seniors have been recognized as semi-finalists in the 1987 National Merit Scholarship Program. Recognition is based on examinations (PSAT/NMSQT) taken during the junior year.

Brett Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bowman of Carmel; Kevin Cain, son of Mrs. Nita Cain of Carmel; John Hayden, son of Mrs. Sylvia Hayden of Salinas; Greg Lippman, son of Dr. and Mrs. A.L. Lippman of Carmel; John Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall of San Diego; Brian McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick of Carmel; Christopher Pratt, son of Dr. and Mrs. Kim Pratt of Stockton; Ellen Schatz, daughter of Mrs. Susan Share of Carmel; and Erin Watson, daughter of Mrs. Roberta Watson of Carmel.

Their test scores ranked in the top 15,000 (1.5 percent) of the one million students who took the test at high schools throughout the United States last year.

Two students received perfect scores in one portion of the PSAT. John Marshall had a perfect 80 in the math section, and Ellen Schatz scored an 80 in the verbal.

These nine semi-finalists will now compete for designation as National Merit Finalists. Some 6,000 college scholarships are awarded each spring to National Merit Finalists.

MCI CORPORATE SPONSORSHIP PROMOTES JAZZ IN CALIFORNIA

MCI Communications Corp. brought the message of communication through music to the ears of thousands of jazz fans at the MCI-sponsored Monterey Jazz Festival, held in Monterey Sept. 19 through 21.

MCI was the exclusive sponsor of this year's 29th Annual Monterey Jazz Festival. Eugene Eidenberg, president of MCI Pacific Division, said that it was "a privilege for MCI to be associated with an event of such caliber, quality and reputation."

Jimmy Lyons, founder and general manager of the festival, feels that having a single corporate sponsor for the event is "a great idea." Lyons said, "I turned down a couple of well-known names two years ago because they wanted to rename the Monterey Jazz Festival as their festival in Monterey. MCI

FIRE LINES
BY MITCH KASTROS

Helping yourself in emergency

THE FIRE department is always available to provide emergency services to those who need them. However, those in need of our help can also do a lot to help themselves in the event of an emergency.

Knowing how to contact the fire department and give the necessary information can save you valuable time, especially in situations where seconds can mean the difference between life and death.

In an emergency, you can reach the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department by dialing 911 or 624-3838. If you dial 911, you will be connected with a dispatcher at Monterey Communications Center, who will take the information and relay it to us. If you dial 624-3838, you will be connected directly with the fire department.

(Those in the unincorporated areas of Carmel in need of emergency medical services, should dial 911 to receive our ambulance and a rescue crew from the forestry station on Rio Road or Carmel Holl.)

Either way, it is important to give the following information: an accurate description of the situation, the exact location of the emergency and the phone number from where you are calling.

Within the city limits of Carmel, it is extremely important to give the exact location of an emergency, since there are almost no numbered addresses in town. Because of this situation, the fire department has to rely on being given geographic locations, which at times can be very confusing if people are not sure where they are. Those of you who live or work inside the city limits should learn the exact geographic location of your house or place of business. Know on which side of the street you are located (north, south, east, west) and the name of the nearest cross-street. Also, keep in mind any characteristics about the building or property that stand out, such as the color of the building, type of car in the driveway or distinct markings or decorations.

MEDICAL EMERGENCIES

During a medical emergency at night, if at all possible, try to turn on as many lights as you can, or have someone meet us outside to show us in.

If you have a family member or close friend who has a specific medical problem, learn what you can do to help him or her in the event they need it. If someone close to you has a heart problem, learn CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation). If a loved one has diabetes, learn what to do in case they have a reaction. You don't have to be a doctor to be able to provide medical help to someone who needs it. Call the fire department or hospital to find out how you can learn to help someone in a medical emergency while the ambulance is responding. Finally, having a first aid kit available for those minor cuts and scrapes can be of great help to a friend, loved one or stranger who is hurt.

Finally remember that we are an emergency agency and will follow through on all legitimate emergencies. We will not, however, render services for situations such as non-emergency medical transports. Peninsula Medics handles these calls, and they are the ones who should be called. Some doctors in the area are advising their patients to call us in non-emergency situations; this is wrong. We cannot afford to tie up our equipment and personnel on these calls, because we are just too busy. Any non-emergency calls we respond to will be turned over to the proper agency.

PROTECTING YOURSELF AND YOUR FAMILY

In addition to knowing how to contact the fire department and give information in an emergency, there are certain steps you can take to protect yourself and your family should a fire occur in your home.

First of all, have a plan for escape in the event of a fire, and practice it. If you cannot practice, at least discuss the plan to the point where everyone knows their own escape route. Since you are most vulnerable during sleeping hours, practice exiting the bedrooms without going through the house, i.e., windows and sliding glass doors.

There are escape ladders available for people with second-story bedrooms with no other means of escape. Also, if you must escape by getting on the roof, make sure it is secure and not weakened by the fire. Hold onto the windowsill, and don't let go until you are sure the roof will support you. If you must exit through a bedroom door into the house, feel the door before opening it. If it is hot don't open it, and stay low at all times to avoid smoke. Lastly, make sure there is a place for everyone to meet so all members can be accounted for.

Since most large fires start out as small ones, having a fire extinguisher and knowing how to use it can also help you help yourself. Most fires that are witnessed in their starting stage can usually be put out with the proper extinguisher.

For unwitnessed fires, especially at night during sleeping hours, smoke detectors have proven their worth many times.

If you are ever in the situation where your house is on fire, make sure you and your family are safe before any other action is taken. If the situation requires you to escape immediately, do so. If you feel it is safe to take action on the fire yourself or call the fire department from inside the burning building, be 100 percent sure of your safety and the safety of your family. If there is the slightest doubt, get out; it is not worth the risk. You can always call from a neighbor's house. Remember, smoke will kill you before the fire does.

Keep in mind also to stay calm in this situation. By practicing and being aware of what to do before a fire starts, you will help yourself stay calm in this situation, should it ever occur.

recognized the festival's history in the Monterey community."

Monterey Jazz Festival proceeds are donated to the non-profit Jazz Education Fund, which provides instruments, sheet music and music clinics to Monterey County high school jazz musicians.

"I think that our contribution towards the future of jazz is very meaningful and that the future lies in the hands of the young, as it does in any art form. We're making our contributions because of MCI," said Lyons.

Al Adolph, president of the Monterey Jazz Festival's Board of Directors, feels that MCI's exclusive sponsorship will give a financial base to the High School Jazz Education Fund.

"Unlike other corporate sponsors, MCI apparently has a genuine interest in the arts and the truly American art form of jazz," he said. "I hope to see this 'marriage' reach fruition with the forthcoming 30th Annual Monterey Jazz Festival next year, which will be the most exciting program coming up in the next five years."

"We hope our message continues to reach MCI users and music lovers all year long," Eidenberg said. "Through sponsorship of the festival, MCI shows its support for cultural activities in California. This promotion gives us the opportunity to help shape the future of jazz."

MCI provides voice and data communications both in the United States and internationally. MCI Pacific Division is headquartered in San Francisco and serves more than 800,000 customers in California, Nevada, and Hawaii.

MONTEREY FILM FESTIVAL ANNOUNCES FIRST SPONSOR

Monterey Film Festival Executive Director David Bean announced that the Monterey Vineyard has become the first main corporate sponsor to confirm support for the 1987 Monterey Film Festival. The Monterey Vineyard will sponsor the gala Directors Ball on Saturday evening, Feb. 7, at the Hyatt Regency. The Directors Ball black tie event will feature presentations of Festival Tribute awards to a selected movie star, and to National Football League Film founders Ed and Steve Sabol, for over 20 years of successful filmmaking.

The Monterey Film Festival will offer American and foreign film premieres, movie stars, and industry experts; surrounded by parties, events and surprises. Workshops and seminars will bring the latest technologies, theories and philosophies to festival attendees. The foreign films, tributes, retrospectives and documentaries will screen throughout the four days of the festival, Feb. 5-8, 1987.

Gary Ibsen, director of public relations for the Monterey Vineyard, commented, "In our continued interest to support the arts in Monterey, we at the Monterey Vineyard and The Seagram Classic Wine Company, are confident that the Monterey Film Festival will serve the Monterey community well, and the film industry at large."

HOSPICE TREE OF LIFE TO HONOR LOVED ONES

Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula with the cooperation and support of The Sheraton Hotel and Citicorp Savings, will sponsor a commemorative light display over Monterey during the holidays this year, according to Robert Brower, president of the Hospice Board of Directors.

Community members will have the opportunity to honor their loved ones through a $10 gift to Hospice, which will light a light on the Hospice Tree of Life for each specially remembered person. The 25-foot display will be mounted atop the Sheraton Hotel throughout the month of December.

The lighting ceremony will take place Monday, Dec. 1, at the Sheraton's Portola Plaza. Congressman Leon Panetta, honorary chairman for the event, will light the display at 5:30 p.m.

"During the holidays people often want to remember loved ones they may have lost, or honor special people in their lives, and the Tree of Life will provide us with an excellent way to do that," says Brower.

A book inscribed with each honored name will be placed in the Sheraton Hotel lobby.

For more information about how to participate, call the Hospice at 372-6565.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Wherefore art thou?

THREE ART showings the past week in Carmel. Loran Speck invited art devotees to his "Drawing Room" for a champagne reception so that the folks could peruse his original drawings and oils at his gallery. The turnout was a good one to the delight of all those in attendance.

Down the street at the Gateway Gallery, we had a chance to witness the works of and meet with, Dalva Duarte of Paris. Her works have been described by the experts as impressionist and expressionist art. Dalva, who does not like to be typed, first began painting at the age of 12 in Brasilia, Brazil, and now resides and paints at her studio in Paris. She has been called the "new Picasso" and her works attest to her creativity. Her secret, she says, "is to paint and transform my thoughts and feelings on canvas, with nothing contrived." She has two studios, one for painting oils, and the other for painting watercolors. This artist of Portuguese ancestry is a "heavy" in the art world and her works hang at the Gateway Gallery.

At the New Masters Gallery on Sixth near San Carlos, a reception was held for Stan Stokes for the showing of a new group of infinitely detailed, three dimensional museum quality paintings by the world's famous aircraft artist whose incredibly accurate canvases are displayed in the permanent collection of four major aircraft museums, including the Smithsonian Institution.

SAKS, PUTTING ON THE RITZ

Saks Fifth Avenue in Carmel Plaza put on quite a fur showing this past week . . . it was a designer collection featuring Carolina Herreia and Jean-Paul Avizon, Revillon's house designer. All the furs shown, according to William Carothers, Western rep for Revillon, were from their vaults in Paris and New York and were shown exclusively at Saks in the United States.

Incidentally, Revillon is the oldest fur house in the world, established in Paris in 1723. They've been with Saks for 24 years. Mr. Carothers further informs me that they'll be doing trunks shows monthly at Saks.

BIG TIME OPERATOR

Ran into Herb McDonald and his lovely wife, Darlene near Harrison library and what a surprise. Herb, whom we first met years ago in Las Vegas, was here to relax after putting on a hydroplane show at Lake Mead. Herb has been publicity director of the Frontier and Sahara hotels, respectively and been one of the forerunners of bringing "big time" golf tournaments to the West Coast and Las Vegas. He has been the director of the J&B LPGA tournament at the Desert Inn, the Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament, and has a "big" hand in the Dinah Shore Nabisco LPGA event in Palm Springs and ran the Muirfield Tourney for Jack Nicklaus in Ohio the first two years it was held. Herb stopped by to also see his longtime buddy, Clint Eastwood. As the saying goes, they "ran" together in the early days. Herb will be promoting the nation's largest rodeo in Las Vegas this coming November.

ON HIS OWN

John Napoli, formerly of Monterey Golf & Tennis Discount, has opened his own golf repair shop called Club Works on Ortiz Street in Sand City. John is happy to be on his own and looking forward to serving all his old customers. He's one of the best at what he does and should be because he was tutored by Ted Oliver and Tony Garduno, two of the best in the golf repair business. We wish him best in his new building in Sand City. Stop by and check it out!

OFF TO GERMANY

Chico and Karin de Rouen are leaving for Gunthersblum, Germany to give aid and more support to his brother Milt who lost his wife Erma this past Sept. 3. I'm sure all their friends in Carmel wish them a speedy and safe trip at this sad time.

A CHOCOLATE DREAM COME TRUE

I scream, you scream,
We all scream for ice cream
Rah, rah, rah

That may well be the theme of Michael Lajigian, owner of Chocolate Dreams on Ocean Avenue, after winning approval for selling ice cream in Carmel. Mike fought the good fight and won, never wavering in his belief that one day, he would be approved. As Yogi Berra once said, "It's not over 'til it's over."

CHRISTMAS IDEA

Jack Wall has a great Christmas idea for you . . . an assortment of his notecards which are reproductions of 10 of his original paintings of California quail in ideal notecard size. Good for golfers too.

See you next week!

The groom's sister is Megan Criley of Quito, Ecuador.

FRIENDS OF HOSPICE EVENT

Carmel artists and hosts will be featured in the third annual Tablescapes by Great Hosts and Hostesses, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday Oct. 18 and 19 at the Monterey Conference Center Serra Grand Ballroom, with the traditional Preview Gala set for 6-8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17.

Artist Lord Barclay Ferguson will unveil his latest series of paintings inspired by the event, and with his wife Lady Harriett (also an artist), is planning one of the most original of the vignettes. Settings by antiques dealers Keller and Scott and Beverley Antiques, Allen and Company, Handworks and Carmel interior designers T. Scott Moore, Dee Robertson, Meridith Camp, Gayle Holmes, Landell Galleries, Wightman and Muth Associates and others will create unique and inspiring settings from formal to functional.

Personal collections and priceless antiques as well as hand fashioned items found in local shops will encourage visitors to recreate some settings for their own pleasure. One of the more historic settings will be offered by Richard Menn, curator of Carmel Mission. His presentation will include dinner plates commissioned by Czar Nicholas I for his royal yacht The Queen Victoria. Silver by Carl Peter Faberge completes this setting.

Sixtieth Anniversary for CMS

CARMEL MUSIC Society certainly knows how to celebrate a 60th anniversary in style. Lequita Watkins put together a pre-concert Gala and a post-concert Night Cap Party. Carmel's Eldon Dedini captured the drama of Leontyne Price for the program cover and Ms. Price made her silver anniversary return to the concert series, thrilling an eager audience at Sunset Center.

What a sensational evening!

Guests attending the Gala under fair skies and a "hint-of-a-tent" were treated to wine, food and music. The award-winning Robert Louis Stevenson String Quartet was tuned into the mood of the evening. RLS musicians are Don Padgett, Bob Padgett, Leah Bayes and Je-Young Chung. Robert Klevan is director.

Board President Marcia Norris greeted the elegantly dressed music lovers and Elizabeth Marshall awarded the Gala door prizes with the help of young Chris Watkins. Chris learned to love opera in Carmel River School third-grade with the help of teacher Martha Merchant. His favorite opera is Tosca.

Gen. George Price, brother and manager for Ms. Price, spoke briefly at the Gala and chatted with new friends and old. Legirta Terrell, of Seaside, renewed a childhood friendship. She and the Prices attended school together in Laurel, Miss., where, according to Gen. Price, "Fine arts and cultural activities were part of our lives while growing up."

Leontyne Price, gloriously thrilling in concert, warmed hearts when she said, "It's nice to be back where one was discovered." After the concert she graciously greeted friends and well-wishers. A friend was Ace Hill (whose Ace Hill Trio is a fixture at the Sheraton), who attended Juilliard with Ms. Price.

Backstage after the concert, Ms. Price told this reporter, "Carmel is paradise. The same as it was 25 years ago. Who wants to tamper with perfection?" She added with a big smile, "I met The Mayor yesterday and I am still goggle-eyed."

MPMA'S CENTENNIAL SALUTE RECEPTION

There was an undercurrent of pride and pleasure at the Centennial Salute for Armin Hansen in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. Pride generated because this is a major exhibition, and pleasure at seeing the Frank Work Gallery (Mrs. Work attended) alive with Mr. Hanson's large, colorful, virile and robust paintings. The Church Gallery holds his delicate, darkly romantic etchings.

The discerning museum and artistic enclaves know this is something special. Between sipping wine and nibbling food tidbits, they studied the dynamic art. Local collector Mary Kay Higgins said, "I like his force, his colors, and the local coastline feeling." Jane Dart's art interests are strong, "He speaks eloquently of this area, of man and the sea. He was a man of many moods. His sense of drama is very moving yet there is a delicacy in his etchings."

Masami Teraoka's works fill the Asian Gallery where "East Meets West" with a tale of two cultures. He has adapted the fragile style of watercolor of the 19th century Japanese tradition of ukiyo-e. He presents the social turbulence and fleeting pleasure of the Edo period, but with the clash of

LOWELL HERRERO HONORED

Both featured artist, Lowell Herrero, and gallery owner, Bill Dodge greeted guests at an elegant reception in honor of Herrero's America calendars in the Bill W. Dodge Gallery in Carmel.

Oohs and ahs were audible as local guests and out-of-town collectors viewed his latest paintings. Everyone seemed to relate well to such works as Sonoma Pasture, Summer Retreat, Home Grown (a vegetable and fruit stand in front of a school house No. 4, 1850), and Barn On Route One (with barren trees and a larger-than-life turkey. After all, it is nearly Thanksgiving). Duck hunters were drawn to Sixteen Decoys and a favorite was Country Touring with tiny houses and a dominant, oversized car with a fan of flags in its radiator.

Fine art's gain was advertising's loss when LH realized a lifetime dream a few years ago of being able to devote fulltime to his individualistic neo-naive style of painting. He soon gained a national reputation with his canvases of cats, whales and penguins.

Earlier in the afternoon the artist signed his America calendar, but graciously continued to do so during the champagne reception.

Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department celebrates its 10th anniversary

THE MID Carmel Valley Fire Department celebrated not only Fire Prevention Week, but its own 10th year of protecting Mid Valley residents with an open house at the fire station Oct. 11. Above, two firefighters demonstrate the proper technique for battling a vehicle fire during one of the many demonstrations held that day. At right, Lee Carmichael, wife of Mid Valley Fire Chief Gary Carmichael, fingerprints Nathan Adams, 3, while his twin sister Gabrielle looks on intently. The open house was marked by equipment demonstrations and exhibits, refreshments, including the department's famous three-alarm chili, a video presentation and a special program featuring children and safety.

OBITUARIES

Elaine B. Ryan

Private family services took place at the El Estero Chapel of Mission Mortuary for Elaine B. Ryan, a longtime resident of Carmel, who died Sept. 21 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Born in Queens, N.Y., she had lived in Carmel for the past 33 years.

Survivors include her husband, James; stepson, James Jr. of Scotts Valley; and two daughters, Bonnie Jean Ryan and Kathleen Ryan, both of Carmel.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Monterey SPCA.

Franklin Johnston Jr.

Graveside services took place at Willamette National Cemetery in Portland, Ore. for Ret. Army Lt. Col. Franklin Vines Johnston Jr., a resident of Carmel for 31 years, who died Sept. 20 aboard the ship Columbia in Seattle, where he had been on a vacation cruise. He was 78.

Born July 22, 1908 in Greenville, N.C., he was a World War II veteran who earned the Bronze Star. After foreign duty in Panama, Germany, Korea and Japan, he retired from the Army in 1959.

He was a member of the Church of the Wayfarer, the High Twelve Club, the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, the SIRS, the California State Employees Association and the Masonic Lodge in Fayetteville, N.C.

Survivors include his wife, Catherine; a daughter, Joanne Alexander of Portland, Ore.; two sons, Franklin III of Carmel Valley and Stephen of Salem, Ore.; two brothers, Alton of Clearwater, Fla. and Wesley of Greenville, N.C.; two sisters, Helen Gray of LaGrange, N.C. and Margaret Capwell of Greenville, N.C.; and four grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held at a later date in Carmel.

Marie F. Goecker

Rosary was recited Sept. 30 in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of the Carmel Mission, and a funeral mass took place Oct. 1 for Marie F. Goecker, a longtime resident of Carmel, who died Sept. 27 at her home. She was 96.

Born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1890, she came to Carmel with her husband, Robert, in 1925.

Survivors include a niece and several nephews, all of Germany. Her husband died in 1962.

Cremation took place after the funeral mass, with inurnment on Oct. 3, both at Monterey City Cemetery.

Contributions to the donor's favorite charity are suggested.

Betsy Hurst

Memorial services took place Sept. 27 at Los Gatos Memorial Park in Los Gatos for Betsy Hurst of Carmel, who died Sept. 23 in an automobile accident in Napa. She was 43.

Born Jan. 30, 1943 in New York, she was raised and educated in New England and Carmel. She was a graduate of Carmel High School in 1961, and attended Monterey Peninsula College.

In 1969 she moved to Solano County where she owned and operated the Green Valley Ranch for 10 years, until 1979, then moved to Napa and became involved in several real estate ventures in the Napa area. She moved back to Carmel in 1985. She was a talented amateur painter and enjoyed riding and owning horses.

Survivors include two sons, Phillip Lord Hurst of Ukiah and Jeffrey William Hurst of Lucerne; and a brother, Dr. William L. Coleman of Chapel Hill, N.C.

Cremation took place under the direction of Richard Pierce Funeral Service in Napa, with inurnment in Los Gatos Memorial Park.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Napa Valley College Foundation, 2277 Napa Vallejo Highway, Napa 94558.

Lenore Cartwright

Cremation took place for Lenore Cartwright, a longtime resident of Carmel and San Marino, who died Sept. 16 in South Pasadena. She was 96.

Born Aug. 12, 1890 in Cleone (Mendocino County), she graduated from the University of California at Berkeley in 1914.

For a number of years she and her late husband, Morse, lived in Berkeley, where he was assistant to the president of the University of California, and in New York, where he served as assistant to the president of the Carnegie Corp. and as a professor at Columbia University. The couple made their home in Carmel from 1949 to 1963.

Survivors include a son, Morse Jr. of Carmel Valley; a daughter, Catherine Osborne of South Pasadena; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

After cremation, ashes were scheduled to be scattered over Carmel Bay.

Kate B. Beeman

Cremation, under the direction of the Neptune Society of San Jose, took place for Kate B. Beeman, a Carmel resident since 1963, who died Sept. 21 at her home. She was 74.

Born Sept. 23, 1911 in Brooklyn, N.Y., she was a graduate of Hunter College in New York.

In the early 1950s, she moved to Los Angeles, and became a teacher in the Los Angeles school district. She met her husband, James, there, and retired from teaching in 1963 to open a shop in Carmel. The Beemans sold the shop, the Sandal Spot, in 1971.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a sister, Helen Norman of Del Rey Beach, Fla.; two brothers, Milton Bass of Norfolk, Va., and Bert Bass of Del Rey Beach, and one nephew.

Her husband suggests memorial contributions to the Monterey County chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, P. O. Box 1112, Pacific Grove 93950.

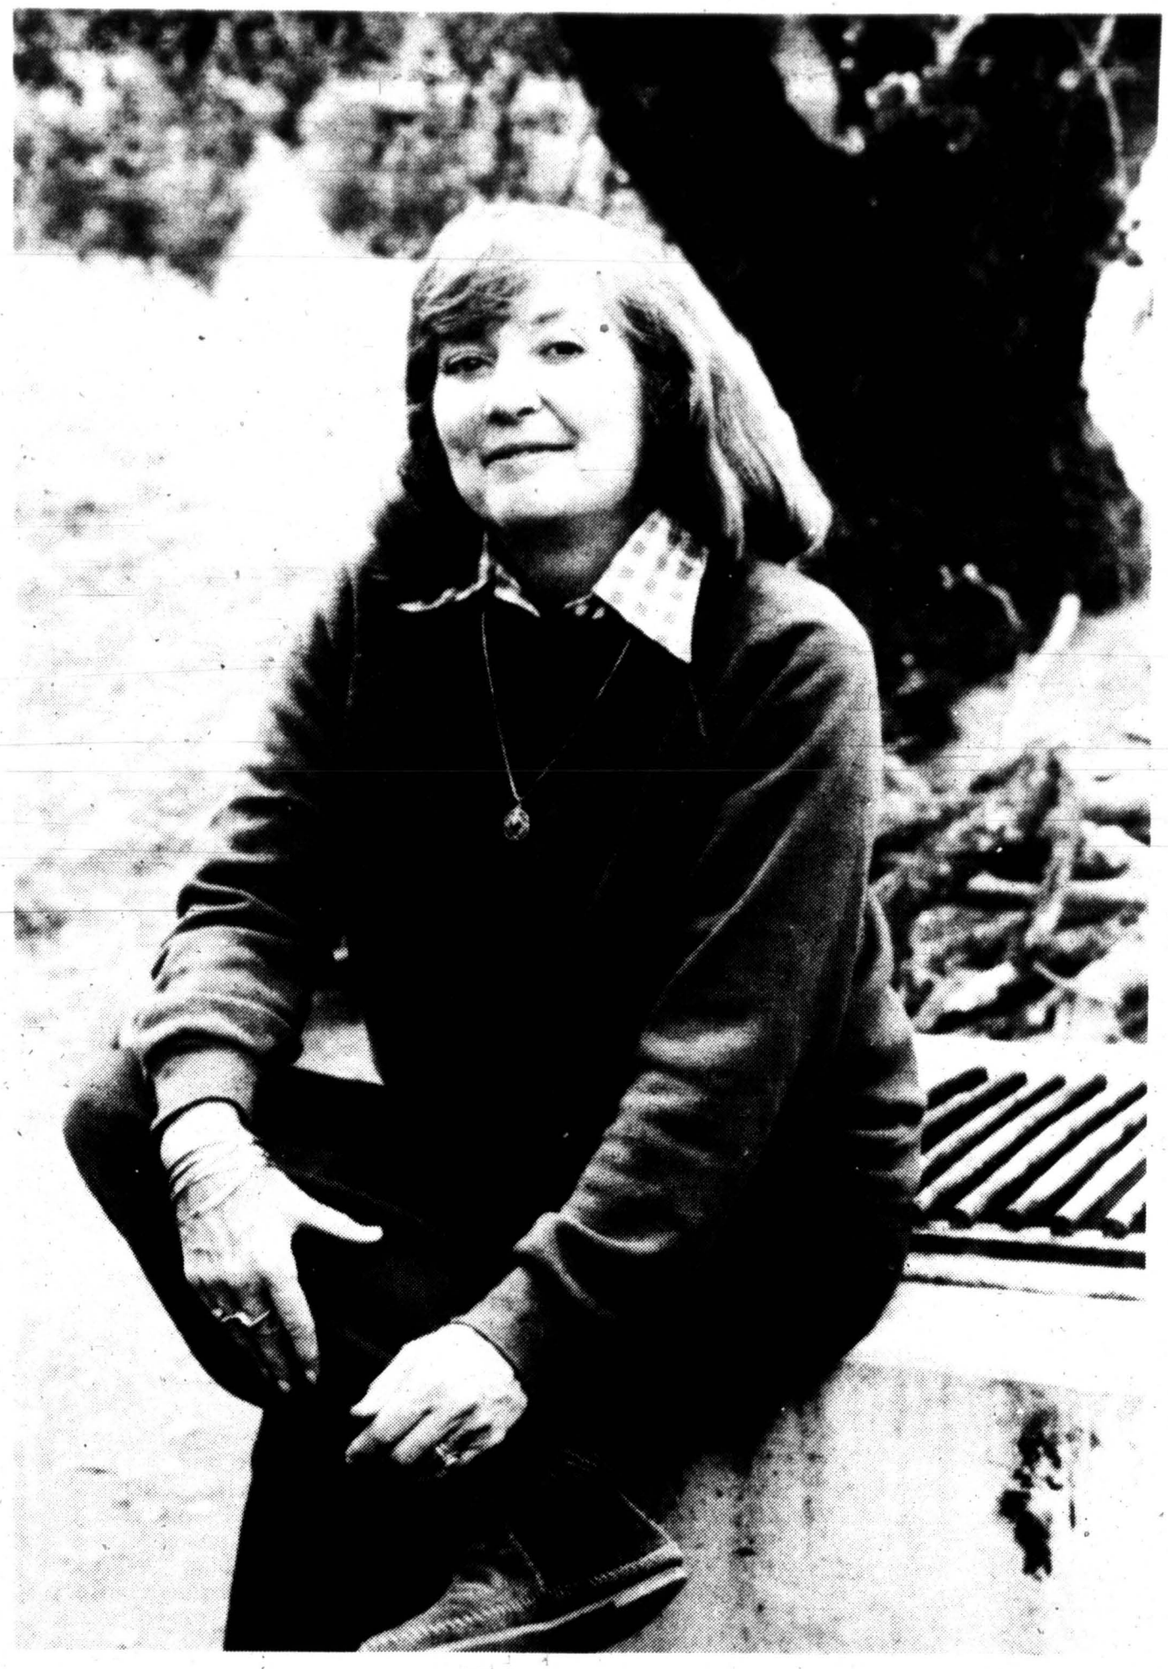
Courage, creativity are the hallmarks of Fosnot's teaching style



MULTI-MEDIA ARTIST Jeanne Fosnot has made a name for herself as a teacher of art on the Monterey Peninsula. She leads classes both at Sunset Center and at her home, and recalls fondly her years spent as an art teacher in Iran.

By ANNE PAPINEAU

MOST OF US have read those classified ads touting jobs in far-off lands. Jeanne Fosnot was no different. Already established as a teacher of painting and life drawing on the Monterey Peninsula, she read of a job opening in Tehran, Iran. But Fosnot didn't just turn the page — she collected her paint brushes and went.

"We read in the San Francisco Chronicle that somebody was wanted in Iran," explained Fosnot. She and her husband, Glenn, the former assistant principal of Monterey High and principal at Seaside High, "interviewed and got the jobs." From 1969 to 1976, pre-Khomeini years, the Fosnots taught at a private school for Americans in Tehran. Jeanne was the art teacher, and Glenn the guidance counselor.

If it took nerve to relocate as they did, Jeanne Fosnot is well-acquainted with that commodity. She received her master's degree in painting, but "never had any formal training in sculpture." When she taught art at the University of Nebraska, "I was told I had to teach a summer sculpture class for gifted students. I filled my arms with books. Then I did a portrait sculpture in my basement with a three-way mirror. I took it in for critique and they said 'cast it.' That summer I cast 22 plaster of Paris heads — lifesize. I was young and energetic."

To this day Fosnot teaches a variety of art media through her workshops at Sunset Center. She also leads a sculpture workshop at her home in Carmel Valley.

"It takes a lot of guts and heart to walk into an art class and say, 'I want to learn to paint,' " Fosnot noted. "A teacher has to learn to look for all the things a student is doing. Art is just like learning to play the piano or to work a typewriter, you have to learn little by little."

Fosnot has had solo shows of her own works around California, the Midwest and at another of her sites of study, Salzburg College in Austria. But she has really built her career as a teacher.

She was an art teacher at Carmel High School from 1964 to 1969 and taught painting and life drawing at the Carmel Adult School for six years. She gained her early teaching experience at her alma mater, the University of Nebraska, where her posts included assistant director of art education and director of museum classes for gifted students.

"I've had a lot of students go on and make art their career. That's what's rewarding," she said. Among her students at Carmel High School were Cachagua sculptor Kris Swanson, whom Fosnot recalled "just picked it up like that."

The Fosnots have maintained a home in Carmel Valley since 1963, but the years spent in Iran remain engraved in Jeanne's memory.

"I loved Iran, the desert — the beige. You just drove for miles on those washboard roads and would see turquoise domes. Someday I will paint that."

Her art students there were Americans of high school age.

"Once a sufi or 'dervish' posed for us. He had bright blue eyes and a turquoise ring to match his eyes. If a student didn't paint his eyes and ring blue he'd correct them — in Farsi (the national language)."

Fosnot remembers her Iranian years as culturally rich and essentially devoid of the turmoil that haunts the nation today.

"We took a yearly field trip. We once travelled to Ispahan, the site of the artistic renaissance. Another time we visited Qom, the religious capitol where Khomeini lives. There we were required to wear the chaddor, or veil. It wasn't safe for our girls to be out on the street without a veil, because they'd be bumped or pinched. In Ispahan, girls would be followed, harassed, for dressing Western."

Fosnot recalled that the American community in Tehran was close-knit, and her students "got so interested in art, the school kept the art studio open weeknights and weekends. Many of my students," she added, "went on to major in art in college."

THE FOSNOTS returned to Carmel Valley and Jeanne made the decision "to strike out on my own, to teach privately."

"I like small classes. My classes for sculpture have no more than seven students, and it's just not financially feasible for the Carmel Adult School to support a class that small."

Teaching sculpture, life drawing and painting is an art unto itself, she has learned. "The way I teach sculpture is by sitting down with each person. I just have to help them to see what's in front of them. It takes a lot of individual attention. 'Where's the apex of the curve of that eye?' for example."

Her opinions are pronounced.

"Everybody knows what painting is and nobody knows what sculpture is," she stated.

The emphasis is on painting and drawing during her workshops that meet from 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesdays at Sunset Center. Both beginners and professionals gather in what Fosnot calls "a non-threatening kind of environment. They're real complementary. I don't teach unless they want to be taught. If they just want to come and play, they can."

She sees her role as a builder of courage and perception.

"The ones who come in new and see the ones who are pros need encouragement. Everyone needs to learn to do a proper plie, to learn to type — to start out.

"The students who are difficult are those who think they should be good right away. They don't want to settle back and be human. You just have to learn to see. People can't stand to be awkward. Those people should just get a good book and learn to do it in the privacy of their own home. But you'll miss all that energy from the class, and love and respect. A good class gives."

Like her classes, Fosnot's interests fall under multiple disciplines. She professes a love of gardening, yoga, aerobic exercise, Feldenkrais and Greek dancing.

'People can't stand to be awkward. Those people should just get a good book and learn to do it in the privacy of their own home. But you'll miss all that energy from the class, and love and respect. A good class gives.'

"I'm greedy," she exclaimed. "One lifetime isn't enough. You've got to come back again and again to do it all."

JEANNE FOSNOT, center, guides Corinne Cully-Gunn in sculpting a life-size portrait. Fosnot leads the art workshop at 1 p.m. each Wednesday in Room 10 of Sunset Center, Carmel.

PACIFIC GROVE Art Center director Marie Gilmore models for sculptor June Sheppard during Jeanne Fosnot's art class. Fosnot has taught at Carmel High School and Carmel Adult School as well.

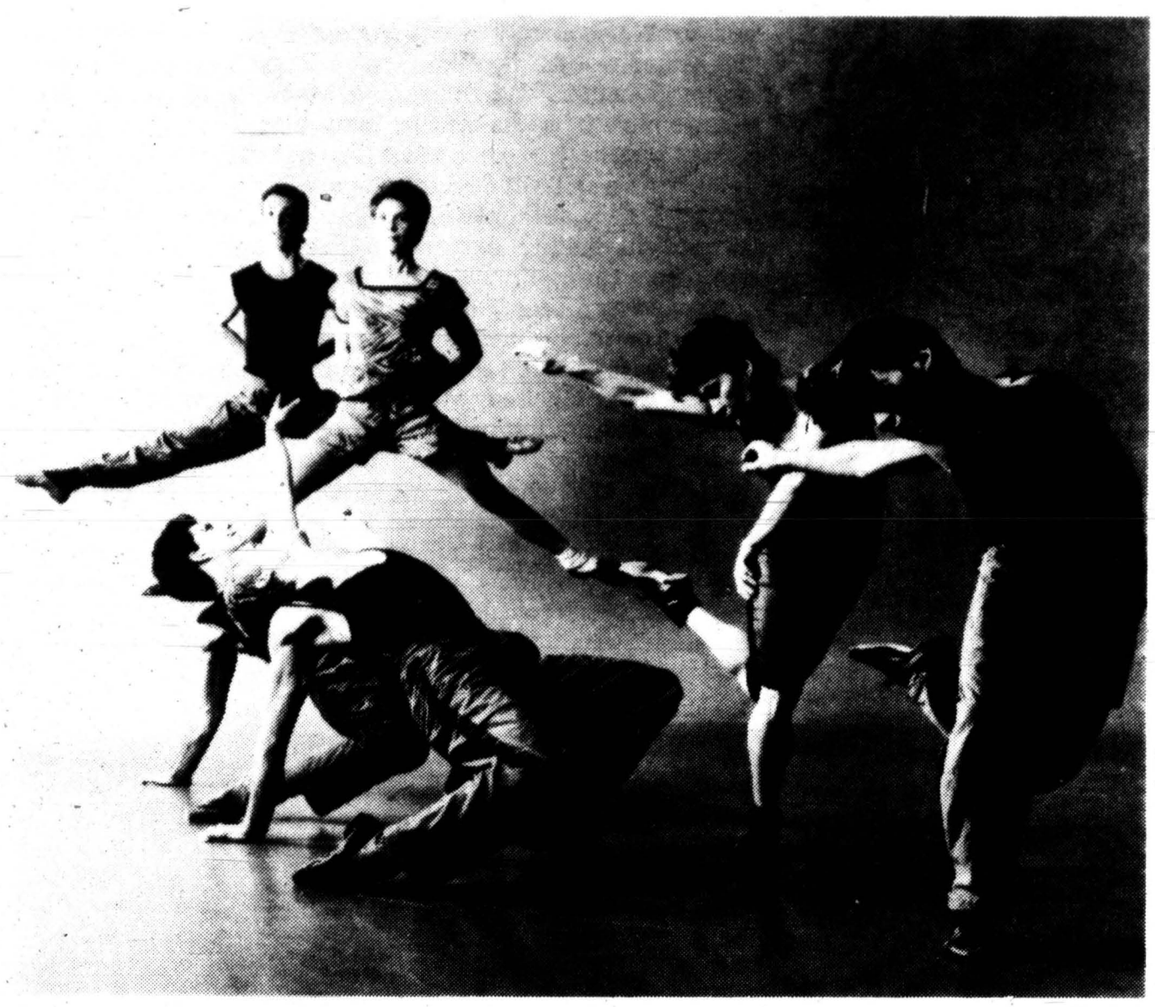
San Francisco modern dance troupe to perform at Sunset

A PERFORMANCE BY ODC/SF will open the new season of the Carmel Festival of Dance. The dance collective will appear at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.



THE SAN FRANCISCO-based ODC/SF dance ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Tickets are $10 and $12.50. Ensemble members include, from left, (back) Jeff Friedman and Julie Kanter; front: Jeffrey Axelrod, Charles Trapolin, Elizabeth Gravelle and Arturo Fernandez. (Lois Greenfield photo).

ODC/SF was founded as the Oberlin Dance Collective in 1971 by Brenda Way. The company served as a performing outlet for dancers, musicians and visual artists at Oberlin College and gradually built a national and local professional stature. Artistic aspirations soon outgrew the esthetic limitations and critical isolation of a Midwestern college town. In the spring of 1976, the Oberlin Dance Collective relocated in San Francisco, hoping to become part of the city's broader and more challenging artistic community.

Soon after arriving in San Francisco, the ODC took its place in the city's dance and performance world by establishing a full teaching curriculum, interdisciplinary performance series, an arts journal, a regular bay area performance schedule and by opening its performance space to local and visiting performers.

The company continued to build its reputation as a contemporary dance company through Dancé Touring Programs of the National Endowment for the Arts and the California Arts Council. This reputation continues to grow as the company and its three choreographers are invited to create commissions and participate in special events and festivals in California and around the country.

In July, 1979, the ODC purchased the building and adjacent lot at 3153 17th St. in San Francisco, making a permanent commitment to the city and becoming one of the very few dance companies to own its own facility. In 1982, a two-story office and studio annex was completed, and the ODC sold part ownership of the facility to the Margaret Jenkins Dance Company. The two companies contracted management and operations of the facility to the New Performance Gallery, Inc., with the intention that the building house both companies and continue the ODC tradition of presenting a diverse program of new performing arts to San Francisco audiences.

Today, ODC/San Francisco continues annually to perform two bay area seasons which premier the new work of its three choreographers and to tour nationally seven to ten weeks each year. Appearances at the Spoleto Festival USA and the Olympic Arts Festival have highlighted previous out-of-town seasons. Touring has increased significantly in the last two years. A European tour to France and Italy and a tour to Australia and New Zealand are in the planning stages for 1987 and 1988.

Animal Fair arrives at SPCA

ADMISSION IS free to the Monterey County SPCA Animal Fair, a multi-media get-together returning for the 12th year to the shelter on Highway 68 across from Laguna Seca Raceway.

The 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. fair will feature the blessing of the animals, a teddy bear parade, pony rides and border collie sheep herding demonstrations.

Food will be available and live entertainment will be provided by Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers, The Cloggers, Sheriff's K-9 Corps. A magic show, pony rides and clowns are also on the schedule.

Dogs should be brought on a leash and children should bring their teddy bears. For additional information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Dogs to be barred from Point Lobos next year

Beginning in January 1987, dogs will no longer be allowed in Point Lobos State Reserve. The new revision of the California Administrative Code states "No person shall bring a dog into, permit a dog to enter or remain, or possess a dog with or without a leash, in any portion of the Reserve. The only exception to this new law are seeing eye, signal or service dogs used to guide a physically impaired person."

For many years dogs have been allowed at Point Lobos but were restricted to the roadways and next to picnic tables. Point Lobos provides a unique habitat for wildlife and is one of the most significant areas of natural beauty in California. The disturbance caused by the presence of dogs has become unacceptable in this highly protected Reserve, according to the Dapartment of Parks and Recreation.

The odor of domestic pets disturbs the Reserve's wildlife. Even with the restrictions placed on dogs, the Reserve has suffered because of them. Dogs have been seen running deer through the meadows, barking at birds at Weston Beach, chasing squirrels at Sea Lion Point and swimming at Whaler's Cove.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

College stages 'On Golden Pond'

ON THE MAIN STAGE at Monterey Peninsula College is a staid production of Ernest Thompson's crowd pleaser, On Golden Pond, more interesting perhaps as the basis for the blockbuster movie into which it was transformed than for the thing itself. Certainly the play suffers in comparison to the film. Certainly the performances suffer by comparison as well, for On Golden Pond comes to us trailing clouds of Henry Fonda's and Kate Hepburn's glorious film performances, a tough act to follow.

The play itself is a rambling exploration of the winding down of a long-married couple, almost-octogenarian Norman Thayer, Jr. (True Boardman) and Ethel Thayer (Louise Nachman), 69. It is also a leisurely examination of the New England male type of Thayer's generation. The type is a legendary puzzlement to foreigners. (These include all non-New Englanders.)

For this kind of man, emotional openness is tabu. The key to Thayer's character, and to this play, is looking-glass logic. The more laconic Thayer is on a topic, the more deeply it touches him. Hence his monosyllabic grunts whenever his daughter Chelsea is mentioned and the offhand manner in which he treats the wife on whom he so utterly depends.

Viewed without this understanding, On Golden Pond seems a tale of a repellent character and the people he damages. With it, we get an almost provocative rendering of culture and generation gaps, as Thayer's 42-year-old daughter, a transplanted southern Californian, struggles to make peace with the old buzzard by whose sternness and sarcasm even she has been taken in.

None of which excuses the playwright, who attempts to convey all this merely by setting the play in a vacation house in the Maine woods. By "on Golden Pond" we are apparently meant to understand the quirky Maine temperament and a culture most of us have never encountered.

In this respect, the playwright has not done his job. And the considerable skills of director Conrad Selvig, set designer Ruth Jordan Allan, and lighting designer D. Thomas Beck do not succeed in bailing out this unclear script. Nor does the competent cast.

As Thayer, True Boardman is appropriately cranky and mean. Louise Nachman gives a good commonsense rendering of the wife much too sensible to take Thayer's nonsense seriously. As Chelsea, Marlie Avant successfully creates the dynamic of an adult child with a lot of old business to settle. Dean Winston provides the bloom of youth in the shape of Billy Ray, the Thayers's stepgrandson, and Brian Burt is flatland tourister to the nines.

All to no avail. Too loosely structured, On Golden Pond ambles aimlessly along, wearing out our interest in this aging couple. Reversals occur, but they do not seem to matter much, and the play goes on until it ends, on a reasonably upbeat note, but without making much of a difference, at least to me.

NORMAN (True Boardman) describes to his wife Ethel (Louise Nachman) the sudden disorientation he experienced while walking in the woods. On Golden Pond continues in the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre.

ON STAGE

Candida

The Staff Players Repertory Company opens its new season with Candida, Shaw's answer to A Doll's House. First presented in 1898, Candida provides Shaw's view of a happy marriage and what makes it work. A young poet then appears and views the entire matter with different eyes.

Philip Clarkson portrays the Socialist preacher. His wife, Candida, is played by Manuela Shaw. The young poet, Eugene Marchbanks, is portrayed by Norman Stottmeister.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs Candida. It will play at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. The run will continue through Nov. 22. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and full-time students. For reservations, call 624-1531.

Billy Bishop Goes to War

John Gray's play with songs, Billy Bishop Goes to War, focuses on the colorful life of Major William Avery Bishop. Bishop was one of the greatest flying aces of World War I. By the age of 23 he had shot down 72 enemy aircraft (eight fewer than Richthofen and almost 50 more than Rickenbacker). Yet he remains virtually unknown.

Bishop was awarded the highest honors the British, French and Canadian governments could bestow, yet he was also considered to be highly unorthodox and almost dangerously insubordinate.

George Berry will play Billy and local composer Stephen Tosh will portray the Piano Player. Billy Bishop Goes to War will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 16-18, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 19, in the Studio Theatre of The Western Stage. The Western Stage is headquartered at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. For ticket information, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

The Dream

The Dream, a dramatic, Christian-themed allegory with music, will be staged at Sunset Theater in Carmel by Carmel Christian Fellowship. The production fuses pantomime, acrobatics, ballet and jazz dance.

The touring production will be staged at 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday, Oct. 20-23, in the theater on San Carlos Street near Ninth Avenue. A donation will be requested at the end of the show. For information, call 659-5269.

The Importance of Being Earnest

Oscar Wilde's comedy of manners continues its run at 8 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Oct. 26 at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre.

The play is rife with cases of manufactured mistaken identity. The Importance of Being Earnest plays in the theater on Fourth Street at Fourth Avenue, behind the Beiter Dental Clinic, Fort Ord. Admission is $6 general, $4 for military. For information or reservations, call 242-6337.

On Golden Pond

On Golden Pond, a touching, funny and heartwarming portrait of a family, continues at the Monterey Peninsula College Theater. The play centers around Ethel and Norman Thayer, who return to their summer home on Golden Pond for the 44th year. They're visited by their divorced daughter and her fiancee. Ernest Thompson wrote the play, which will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $8 general, $6 for students, senior citizens and the military and $4 for children under 13. For reservations, call 646-4213 after 4 p.m.

Follies

Follies, a musical by James Goldman and Stephen Sondheim, continues its run at The Wharf Theater in Monterey. Directed by Larry Ayo, Follies is a celebration of the present that confronts the past. The musical builds upon the reunion of two former Follies showgirls and their husbands, each a former stage door johnny. Their party chatter gives way to deeper reflection and confrontation with personal, self-deluding "follies."

Follies will be staged at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays through Nov. 16. Tickets are $10 and $8. The theater is on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey.

On Thursday, Oct. 16, the Wharf Theater will sponsor a benefit performance for the Family Resource Center, which will include a post-performance reception. Tickets are $15, and reservations are a must. To make them, call 372-2882.

It Had to Be You

It Had to Be You, a comedy which originally starred its authors, Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna, continues at the Studio Theatre Restaurant, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel.

Roselle Weinfield and Dick Vreeland portray, respectively, Theda Blau, a failed actress, health food nut, analyst and would-be playwright who wants to find love and success in New York, and Vito Pignoli, a hugely successful TV commercial director. By holding him hostage in her apartment on a snowy Christmas Eve, she somehow manages to convince him to be her partner — both in dramaturgy and marriage.

It Had to Be You runs Thursdays through Sundays until Nov. 29, with dinner at 7 p.m. and curtain at 8:30 p.m., except Sundays, when times are one hour earlier. Student, military and senior citizen rates are available Sundays. Tickets are $26.50 for dinner and show, exclusive of tax and gratuity. Tickets: 624-1661.

On the Rio Grande

A Western-themed melodrama written around 1880, On the Rio Grande tells of a crooked ranger who tries to frame his former boss' son.

Curtain time at California's First Theatre is 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through November. The theater, the oldest in the state, is on Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens and $3 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916 between 1 and 5 Wednesdays and Thursdays and between 1 p.m. and show time Fridays and Saturdays.

How to lure garden butterflies

"Gardening with Butterflies" is the theme of the Tuesday, Oct. 21 gathering of the California Native Plant Society. The public is invited to attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Carmel High School Library.

John Lane, education director of the Santa Cruz City Museum, will present a talk and slide show that will cover strategies for bringing butterflies into the garden, aspects of butterfly psychology, what butterflies can be expected and which plants to introduce.

Books, posters, notecards etc. will be on sale before the meeting.

Western dancers learn new steps

The Monterey and Salinas recreation departments sponsor Western dance classes for the whole family. Among the dance steps covered are Slappin' Leather, Western Swing, Two-Step, 14-Step and more.

In Monterey, classes began Monday, Oct. 13 at the Monterey Recreation Center, 777 Pearl St.

In Salinas, visit any Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Salinas Community Center, 940 N. Main St. Salinas prices are $20 a month for adults, $12 a month for teens (13-18) and $8 a month for children (ages 12 and under).

For more information, call the local recreation department or 625-2092 or 646-3873.

Boomer Dance Theater schedules Pacific Grove concert

A MODERN DANCE concert by the Boomer Dance Theater will open the 1986-87 performance series sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association. The ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18 in the Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium. For ticket information, call 375-8806.

THE DEVELOPMENT of modern dance will be chronicled when Boomer Dance Theater appears Saturday, Oct. 18 at the Pacific Grove Middle School auditorium. The 8 p.m. performance is sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association.

Choreographer Jacqueline Boomer and dancers will showcase a blend of ritual, ballet, modern, jazz and performance-art styles into an evening of contemporary dance. Boomer received her master's degree in choreography and ritual dance at UCLA.

In 1984 Boomer taught at the National School of Dance in Kingston, Jamaica and in 1977 her solo, Moon Dance, toured with the National Opera of Finland. She has been artistic co-director and choreographer for Harbinger Dance Theatre in Los Angeles and the Offshoot Ensemble in Denver, Colo.

Saturday's dance concert will be built around music by Reflex, George Winston, Boys Don't Cry, Percy Sledge and Penderecki and The Nylons.

It will be the first concert of the new season presented by the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association. The second concert will be offered Saturday, Nov. 1 and will feature DeWayne Fulton, harpist. On Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1987, pianist Annie Nalezny will appear. The Slovenian Mastersingers of Yugoslavia will close the series on Friday, March 13. All concerts begin at 8 p.m. in the Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium.

Concert memberships are available from members and may also be ordered at Saturday's concert. Adult memberships are $18 and student memberships are $8. Admission to concerts is by admission card. Membership checks may be sent to the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association, Box 433, Pacific Grove, 93950. For additional information, call Connie Callas at 375-8806.

Officers of the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association are Morris Dill, president; Louise Bidwell, first vice president; Victoria Davis, second vice president; Blanche Washburn, corresponding secretary; Elmarie Ewing, recording secretary; Connie Callas, financial secretary; Morris Dill, concert chairman; Allen Kinney, auditor; Nadine Annand and Ruth Vreeland, publicity.

Unicorn Theatre seeks Christmas-themed writings

Unicorn Theatre Presents is currently soliciting short stories and poems for its original Christmas production, "A Seed Beneath the Snow: Christmas Past, Present and Future". The deadline for submission of material is Nov. 1. Premiere performances will be given at Cherry Hall in Carmel beginning Dec. 12.

Preference will be shown for material which explores personal responses to the holiday season. Material submitted need not be written specifically for this production — previously written material that has lain dormant should be pulled out of hiding, touched up and submitted.

The anticipated length of the show is one hour and 15 minutes; no piece should last longer than 10 minutes.

The show will be directed by Chuck Thurman and performed readers' theater-style with limited interaction between the performers.

Those wishing to contribute material should mail their pieces to Unicorn Theatre Presents, care of Chuck Thurman, 906 Franklin, Monterey, CA 93940 or call Carey Crockett at 659-5629.

All writers whose work is chosen will be notified after Nov. 1. Writers wishing to have their material returned should enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Carl Jung group to interpret dreams at meeting

Described as a mini-lecture/experiential event, "Images from Dreams, Drawings, Bodywork, an introduction to Methods of Dream Incubation" by Peter Harding, M.D., will be offered at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17, at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Participants will hear a brief history of the discovery and evolution of dream incubation, and then have individual awareness exercises to elicit drawn eidetic images. Everyone will work with images in front of others, and observe the work of others as well. Discussion, evaluation and some analysis will follow.

For many years, Dr. Harding has been incorporating many aspects of bodywork into his practice, synthesizing dreamwork with them. About 3½ years ago, following the destruction of his Carmel Valley home by landslide, he returned to Big Sur and began preparing a dream incubation center on his property there.

This program is the second in the current series of events sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. This is composed of people who are finding mutual support while enlarging their knowledge of Jung's psychological insights. They believe that applications of those insights to their daily lives is enhanced by discussions with others who have kindred interests.

The public is invited to this and all other events. Because attendance at Dr. Harding's presentation is limited, prior registration is suggested, although door admissions are possible. Please call or write for further information: 649-8809; Joseph Pagano, 853 Pacific St. Monterey.

Native plants go on sale

CAROL LENEVE (left) and Harriette Rowntree ready drought-resistant native plants for the annual fall plant sale sponsored by the California Native Plant Society. Sale hours will be noon to 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 19 at Carmel High School. There will be a selection of native plants available to suit the various growing habitats of the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas, from plants that require a cool coastal influence to those that thrive in warm, sunny valleys. Members of the local chapter will be on hand to give horticultural advice and there will be a large selection of gardening and native plant related books for sale along with CNPS posters and wildflower seeds. Cultural grant applications taken

The Monterey County Cultural Council (MCCC) is now accepting applications for cultural grants.

In general, all non-profit, tax-exempt organizations located in Monterey County and most public agencies may apply for Cultural Projects Grants.

Individual artists and organizations who have not established a non-profit status should contact the MCCC for assistance.

- To support non-profit cultural organizations which provide high quality arts programs to the residents of Monterey County;
- To support cultural programs by other organizations in communities underserved by established cultural organizations;
- To help establish new organizations where there is a demonstrated need.

To ensure that all communities have access to these new funds, the council will schedule workshops in various areas of the county to explain the application process. Additionally, a member of the staff or the Grant Review Panel will be available to meet with organizations and provide assistance.

To take advantage of either of these services. or to gain more information, call 646-4251.

Applications for the regranting programs of the Monterey County Cultural Council for both the Cultural Projects and Institutional Grants will be available at Sunset Center, Carmel; at all offices of the county board of supervisors; at city halls in Monterey, Marina, Seaside, Salinas and King City, and at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Applications must be received by 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 31.

Addiction process studied during workshop

"Habit or Addiction: What's the Difference?" will be the topic of a community health forum to be presented from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 18 in the Main Conference Room at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Panelists will be four staff members of the Community Hospital Recovery Center, 576 Hartnell St., Monterey, which provides inpatient and outpatient treatment for people with drug and alcohol problems.

Lloyd Parker, M.F.C.C., outreach coordinator of the Recovery Center, will provide an overview of addiction including its physical and psychological effects.

There is no charge for attendance, but early arrival is recommended since seating is limited. For information, call 625-4505.

'Pep Up Your Playgoing'

County symphony launches 41st season

CLARK SUTTLE chose an all-romantic concert to inaugurate the new season of the Monterey County Symphony and it was, in general, successful.

After the traditional season-opening national anthem, the program proper proceeded with the overture to The Flying Dutchman of Wagner. It was a familiar and comfortable way to start the season, in addition to giving the players a chance to warm up, check intonation, etc. Suttle showed off the dynamic range of his orchestra, taking them from triple-softs to triple-louds and back. In spite of occasional lapses of tension, as well as occasional lapses of intonation, it was an exciting performance.

Thirty or 35 years ago, the Grieg piano concerto could be avoided only by a move to Siberia, but then it suddenly went into a decline and was heard very little. It surfaced this weekend under the hands of Andre-Michel Schub, the 1981 Van Cliburn Competition winner. Probably people who like the concerto liked the playing and vice versa. I find the concerto very tiresome with its overdone arpeggios, its tendency to state everything at least twice, and its reluctance to move very far from the home key. Not in this concerto do we find the quirky harmonic twists that give Grieg a distinctive flavor.

Brahms' magnificent Symphony No. 2, Op. 73, took up the balance of the program in a rather cautious performance. This work demands a lot from the audience as well as from the players: it is not so tuneful as the First, so extroverted as the Third, nor so moody as the Fourth. The audience was rewarded for close attention, although the performance had some difficulties.

The main problems centered on sound and phrasing, the former throughout, the latter in the third and fourth movements especially. Suttle seemed to get the orchestra to a certain dynamic level and stay there rather than give some shape to the sound mass. Whether or not this had to do with the dry acoustics at King Hall only a hearing in another venue would reveal. It was sometimes difficult to distinguish foreground from background — everything came out the same. This was particularly noticeable in the second movement, which got a bit bogged down. The fast movements were properly light, but the third movement lacked the rhythmic incisiveness which was apparent in the last movement.

Nevertheless, taken as a whole, it was a worthy performance. The orchestra played with enthusiasm, the intonation was generally good, the low strings (as we are coming to expect) were especially lovely. The winds had some fine moments, especially in those exposed horn parts. More projection from the flutes would be welcome — nothing wrong with the playing, it simply needs more presence.

This is my favorite of the Brahms symphonies, so I am delighted it is in the repertoire. I look forward to hearing it again before too many seasons elapse, in continually maturing readings.

Women's support group gathers

A battered women's support group sponsored by the YWCA meets at 1 p.m. Fridays at the Family Resource Center, 500 Hilby Ave., in Seaside.

Free child care can be provided with advance notice. Call 649-0834.

A CREATIVE WRITING workshop will be taught by Adele Langendorf at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel. Students will receive instruction in poetry and journal writing, as well as tips on getting their work published. For additional information, call 624-7491.

Creative writing workshop offers help on several levels

Poet Adele Langendorf will teach a creative writing workshop at Carmel's Cherry Foundation, beginning 1 to 2:30 p.m. Thursday. Oct. 16. The group will meet for six weeks and cost $35, $18 for senior citizens.

Students will learn techniques of poetry and journal writing, and ideas for getting published.

Langendorf received an M.A. in English and creative writing from San Francisco State University, and has taught literature, writing and poetry in the San Francisco Bay area. She is currently a Carmel resident.

Her book of poems, DENIAL, was recently published and other works have appeared in small press magazines. She also reviews books for local newspapers.

For more information and to register for the workshop call the foundation at 624-7491.

The Cherry Foundation is a non-profit, public institution that sponsors the experimental arts, sciences and education.

Children shown free films

Free films for children will be presented at the Monterey Public Library from 4 to 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17. To be shown are Charlie Needs a Cloak, Lost Pigeon and Mole in the Desert. For more information, call the library, 646-3930.

Images of Mississippi exhibited at The Friends gallery

COLOR AND black and white photographs made in Mississippi by Birney Imes III will be featured in The Friends of Photography Gallery in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. The gallery will open at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17 with a preview of the images. There will be an informal gallery talk, followed by a reception for the art ', at 8 p.m. on Friday. Admission is free to both events.

Birney Imes has been photographing in the area surrounding his Columbus, Miss. home and in the Mississippi River Delta for more than a decade. Two bodies of work from Imes' extended involvement with the region are included in this exhibition at The Friends Gallery. The first, undertaken between 1979 and 1984, consists of black and white photographs of life in the black communities of rural Mississippi. In these compelling images, Imes draws on a contemporary documentary style that accepts ambient movement and limited depth-of-field within an image and tightly frames the picture to heighten the impact on the viewer. The photographs depict baptisms, burials and other cultural events, as well as more straightforward portraits of individuals and groups. These photographs reveal the strong faces of their subjects at the same time that they present a feeling of the strong Southern sunlight.

The second set of photographs included are color images, made beginning in 1983, that depict the primitive country "juke joints" of the Mississippi Delta. Primarily unpeopled, the color prints explore the wildly expressive interior decor of these bars, with their spray-painted walls, hand-lettered signs, plywood floors and well-worn pool tables. Those people who do appear in the artifically lighted photographs are often shown blurred during the long exposure while they are conversing with friends, drinking or shooting pool.

The photographs in both series have a subtle hardness that avoids the potential nostalgia for life in the South that might easily be found in photographs made in the towns where Imes has photographed, places with names such as Yazoo City, Darling, Rolling Fork and Alligator. Rather than romanticizing a poverty-stricken region, Imes' photographs present an elegantly stated picture of humanity and dignity in a part of the country that remains greatly unknown to most Americans, an area where getting by is a way of life.

While the documentary and historical value of these photographs cannot be discounted — the rural black people of Mississippi have developed a distinct culture, and the juke joints that are central to it are constantly changing or disappearing — Imes' motivation comes from a desire to move the viewer with stunningly beautiful photographs.

Birney Imes was born in Columbus, Miss. and received his B.A. degree in history from the University of Tennessee in 1973. He began his work in photography in 1974. He is essentially self-taught in the medium and now supports his creative interests by doing commercial work. In 1984 he received a Photographer's Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts, with which he undertook a two-year photographic survey of the cotton farms of the Mississippi Delta. The result was a 40-print show, a portion of which is included among the color images presented in this exhibition.

David Featherstone, executive associate of The Friends of Photography, served as curator for the Birney Imes III exhibition.

SUGAR HILL Portrait, Crawford, Miss., is a 1982 silver print by Birney Imes III. His images, both color and black and white, will be highlighted at the Friends of Photography Gallery through Nov. 30. An artist's reception and gallery talk are scheduled Friday, Oct. 17.

Local crafts groups take center stage at show

The art exhibit for the month of October for the Seaside Art Gallery will highlight Carmel Crafts Guild and Art Unlimited.

Carmel Crafts Guild is a nonprofit organization organized in 1948 and incorporated in 1952. The guild participates in the Northern California Handweavers Conference to take place in Asilomar.

The Seaside exhibit will consist of wallhangings, wearables, baskets, yardage and utilitarian handwovens. More information regarding membership is available by calling 424-4227 or 624-7289.

Art Unlimited is a Salinas group of artists who have served the community more than 20 years. They enhance homes and businesses with their artistry in the visual arts. Proceeds from their sales and rentals are used to support a scholarship program. Annual scholarships are awarded through competition of local aspiring senior high school artists.

For information on the Art Unlimited calendar of events call 422-3939 or 422-2907.

Gallery conducts benefit auction

CONTINUING AN 11-year association with Gallery Americana, Maurice Harvey will be the focus of a one-man show of paintings at the Carmel gallery located on Lincoln Street at Sixth Avenue. An opening reception is planned 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18.

A Maurice Harvey painting, I Can Dream of the Old Days, will be auctioned Friday, Oct. 17 as a benefit for the Monterey County SPCA. The painting will go to the highest bidder with an opening bid of no less than $6,500. All proceeds will go the SPCA and bidders must be present.

The silent auction, which will include a champagne reception, will take place 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17 at Gallery Americana. For more information or to receive an invitation, contact the Monterey County SPCA at 373-2631 or 422-4721, or call Gallery Americana at 624-5071.

I CAN DREAM of the Old Days*, a painting by Maurice Harvey, will be auctioned Friday, Oct. 17 during a benefit for the Monterey County SPCA. The auction will take place at Gallery Americana in Carmel, with bids starting at $6,500.

Harvey, an English-born artist, is a graduate of the Southend College of Art and he also attended the London College of Art. After several years of development as an artist working on national accounts through London agencies, Harvey emigrated to Canada.

In that country he was commissioned by the government to create a series of paintings that depict the parliament buildings of the 10 Canadian provinces, where they are all now displayed. He was also art director for a "Queen's Printer," involved in reproducing fine art for the National Gallery of Canada.

Harvey is now an American citizen residing in California. He was associated with the film industry for many years and received an Emmy Award for his work. His other awards and recognitions include the New York Art Directors Award for a series of Old Steam Train paintings.

Harvey looks to both his native England and his current California home for inspiration and subject matter for his paintings.

According to the artist, "When deciding on a certain area that I am about to paint, I will often visit that area time and time again before I finally settle on how to paint it. I do this to find the best time of day for the scene, and which light most compliments it.

"How does a scene look in the rain, sunshine or fog? Some scenes are glorious in rain, others need filtered sunlight or low sunlit skies. This gives me a chance to utilize long shadows and interesting patterns on what otherwise might be a rather bland scene."

His subjects include moody East Anglia in England, rolling California hills and sunlit barns.

American Artist said of his work, "Such could be called 'nostalgic,' but the paintings by Maurice Harvey transcend the banal connotations of that overworked word. Harvey's paintings are not sentimental, they are an expression of the artist's deep feelings about the countryside, the continuity that only nature can offer man to ward off his own impermanence."

NOTICE OF DEATH OF CLAIRE LOUISE KNIGHT AND PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Case No. MP9847

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate of Claire Louise Knight. A petition has been filed by Luanne M. McCoy in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that Luanne M. McCoy be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. A hearing on the petition will be held on Nov. 7, 1986, at 9:30 a.m. at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may serve upon the executor or administrator, or upon the attorney for the executor or administrator, and file with the court with proof of service, a written request stating that you desire special notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisement of estate assets or of the petitions or accounts mentioned in sections 1200 and 1200.5 of the California Probate Code.

CITY COUNCIL
CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 86-18
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA AMENDING SECTION 10.32.140 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE REGARDING RESIDENT PERMIT PARKING

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. The following section 10.32.140 of the Municipal Code shall be amended to read as follows:

10.32.140 Resident permit parking. It is the purpose of this section to establish for residents or owners of residential property (R-1, R-4) within the corporate limits of the city, a permit parking system in the commercial district.

A. Vehicles bearing current residential parking permit stickers shall be allowed to be parked for two hours in parking spaces marked for one-hour parking.

B. A residential parking permit sticker shall be issued to an eligible resident or owners of residential property (R-1, R-4) within the corporate limits of the city, by a city employee who shall place the sticker on the left rear bumper of the vehicle so that it can be readily seen by a traffic-control officer. In order to be eligible to receive a residential parking permit sticker:

1. The applicant must prove residency or ownership of residential property within the corporate limits of the city; and

2. The applicant must prove that he is the registered owner of the vehicle.

C. 1. Residency may be proven by:

a. A showing that the current registered voter list on file with the registrar of voters for Monterey County indicates that the applicant is a registered voter with an address within the corporate limits of the city;

b. A declaration under penalty of perjury signed by a currently registered voter certifying that the applicant is a resident of the city;

c. A valid California drivers license indicating the applicant's address is within the corporate limits of the city; or

d. Other acts, occurrences or events that indicate that presence in the city is more than temporary or transient.

2. Ownership of residential property within the corporate limits of the city may be proven by:

a. A current homeowner's exemption;

b. A valid deed; or

c. Any other reliable manner of establishing title.

D. Residential parking permit stickers shall be issued pursuant to procedures to be established by the city administrator. Copies of the procedures may be obtained from the city clerk. The stickers shall be good for one year.

A fee shall be established by resolution of the city council to cover the cost of materials and labor involved in providing the sticker. The fee shall not be prorated because a sticker is issued for less than a full year. The fee may be changed by resolution of the city council. (Ord. 81-16 1, 1981: prior code 550.8).

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 7th day of October 1986, by the following roll call vote:

Attention, Sellers!

Which do you prefer?...

A real estate office to list your property, or do you want a real estate office to sell your property? There is a difference, you know. If you want the latter, give it some careful thinking. There are many factors that go into good marketing practice in these times.

For Example...

The listing office should have a firm grasp of property values including location, size, age, etc. and apply the plus (or minus) values to your listing. This knowledge should be applied to your particular home to arrive at an attractive, yet realistic, asking price.

The office should have expetise in screening potential buyers to eliminate "tire kickers" and concentrate on serious, motivated customers who qualify as to credit ratings, sincerity and other standards.

The listing office should be able to guide the seller and the buyer through the ever changing complexities of today's mortage market — aiding them to obtain the right loan and the best rate.

And, perhaps the most important service you want, the office should have an experienced, professional staff with a proven track record of thoroughly exposing, advertising and promoting real estate.

Here at THE MITCHELL GROUP our object is to SELL...not just LIST. So do give us a call and let's discuss your needs and your requirements. Yes, we are members of the Carmel-Monterey Listing Service and fully cooperate with other offices.

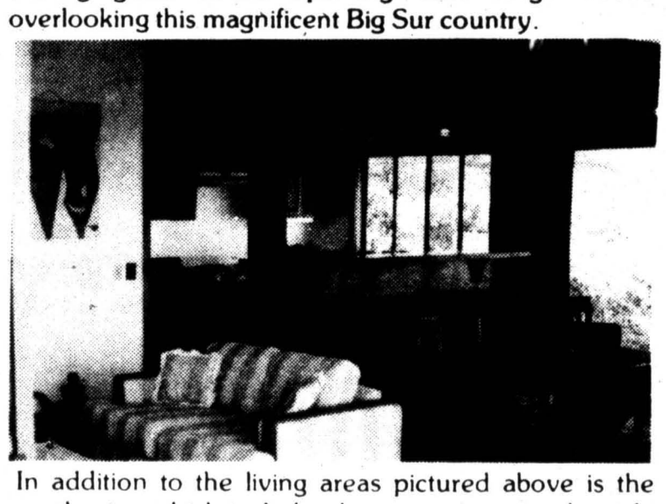
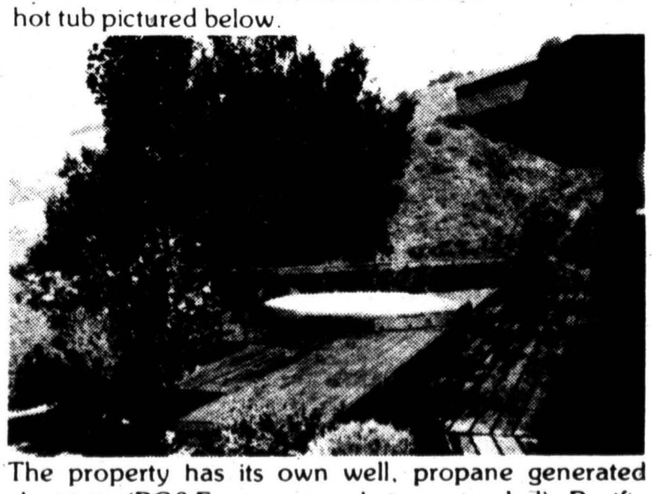
BIG SUR
Pfeiffer Ridge Residence

Pfeiffer Ridge extends from the juncture of the Big Sur River with the Pacific Ocean in a big open "S" to the intersection of the Scenic Highway with Sycamore Canyon's road to Pfeiffer Beach. Sloping toward the ocean, are lovely grassland meadows, redwood canyons and oak knolls. Nearby state parks and national forest land provide limitless opportunities to enjoy wilderness areas, clean air and nature at its best. The recently completed home on five acres of a westerly shoulder of Pfeiffer Ridge, enjoys grand views of incomparable terrain and Pacific Ocean. From the locked gate at the Scenic Highway to the residence is via a country road of about three miles.

Entrance to the two bedroom, two bath home is through a handsome tiled atrium. The living area, branching off to the south, contains a sleeping alcove, full bath, raised fireplace, kitchen, dining area with sliding glass doors opening onto large decks overlooking this magnificent Big Sur country.



In addition to the living areas pictured above is the north wing which includes the master suite, with study and sitting areas, a large tiled bath with walk-in closet and a second bedroom. Off the master bedroom is the hot tub pictured below.



The property has its own well, propane generated electricity (PG&E power now being extended), Pacific Bell telephone and a septic system. There's usable land for orchard and garden. This fine property enjoys a sunny southwest exposure, with panoramic views of the Pacific Ocean and intervening foothills. Price is $245,000. Please let our Coast Properties Division provide you more details about this exciting property.
